'Bonusgate' figures cut deal

Five defendants in public corruption case sign guilty plea agreements.

By MARK SCOLFORO
Associated Press Writer

HARRISBURG — Five defendants in the Pennsylvania legislative bonus investigation have signed guilty plea agreements that outline how dozens of charges will be dropped in the corruption case expected to go to trial in the coming

The documents were among the material prosecutors recently handed over to defendants during the pretrial discovery process.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office declined to comment Friday, saying plea agreements cannot be discussed publicly until a judge approves them. None of the five defendants' lawyers returned phone messages left by The Associated Press.

Those five defendants and seven others - all of them connected to the House Democratic caucus - were charged more than a year ago with theft, conflict of interest and conspiracy in what prosecutors said was a scheme to divert public resources and employees to do campaign work or for other improper purposes.

The agreement for Michael Manzo, a former chief of staff to then-Majority Leader Bill DeWeese, calls for him to plead guilty to conspiracy, three counts of theft and six counts of conflict of interest. Manzo had been facing 47 counts.

Jeff Foreman, once one of the highest-ranking lawyers on the House Democratic payroll, plans to plead guilty to four felonies — conflict of interest, conspiracy and two counts of theft by failure to make required disposition of funds received. He had been charged with 24 counts.

Scott Brubaker, a former staffing and administration supervisor, would plead guilty to four charges, down from 22. His wife, Jennifer Brubaker, who once ran the caucus' research office, is getting her charges reduced to conspiracy and three

Four sites eyed for new jail

New state prison planned for Fayette County will create some 700 jobs.

By MARY PICKELS
For The Valley Independent
mpickels@tribweb.com

A week after the Department of General Services announced that German Township will not be among the municipalities considered for construction of a state prison, a new township site was proposed for the Fayette County facility.

Site selection for the planned 2,200-bed facility is expected in the first quarter of next year, General Services press secretary Edward Myslewicz said Friday.

And German Township officials say they are hopeful the prison, along with an anticipated 700 "family-sustaining" jobs, will come to their township.

Three sites in Luzerne Township are also in the running for the prison.

On Thursday, General Services Secretary James P. Creedon met with local and state officials and property owners to consider property in German Township owned by Chris Clark.

Last week, an earlier German Township site under consideration, owned by the Tiberi family, was excluded because preparation costs were estimated at $25 million.

Myslewicz said the prison budget, from property acquisition to construction, is $200 million.

"It would have cost considerable site preparation work," Myslewicz said of the Tiberi site.

A number of geotechnical studies will be conducted to determine if the site is suitable, Myslewicz said.

"Everybody is working together on this," German Township Supervisor Bob Croushore said. "What a letdown it was when we first heard it was not going to come here."

"The whole picture here will be better for this area," Croushore said. "It will mushroom. The benefits will cover from this end of the county and into Greene County."

High-speed rail projects seen needing more than $8 billion

Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell says it would require more than $20 billion just to build the high-speed line he envisions between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

By JOAN LOWY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Communities and companies seeking to build high-speed rail systems haven't yet received the $8 billion in stimulus money the Obama administration promised for the projects, and already they want more — a lot more.

Include the governors of Pennsylvania and Ohio to the list because they want a train route between Cleveland and Pittsburgh to be included in the nation's high-speed passenger rail network.

Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell and Ohio Gov. Ted Strickland have requested that the federal government designate the 140-mile route as a high-speed corridor.

The consensus at a conference for high-speed rail proponents here this week was that the federal government should ante up substantially more to demonstrate the long-term financial commitment to make such projects viable.

The U.S. High Speed Rail Association is promoting a plan for a 17,000-mile, national network of 220 mph bullet trains — a wish list of every potentially credible project. The estimated price tag: $600 billion over 20 years.

That's a lot of money, conceded Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Texas, who addressed the conference. By the time a national network gets built, "I think it's going to be that much," Johnson said.

At least $150 billion is needed for a serious start on a national high-speed rail network, said Rendell, a rail proponent. Then he added: "We're probably talking about more than that."

He would use soem of that money for a route that would serve as a link between a high-speed designated corridor that runs between Chicago and Cleveland and one that runs between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

The entire $8 billion for high-speed and intercity passenger rail included in the economic stimulus program enacted by Congress earlier this year is only a third of the cost of constructing a single high-speed line from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh — an estimated $20 billion to $25 billion, Rendell said.

"We haven't yet made a serious commitment to high-speed rail," said Rendell, who has joined with New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg and California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger to form

'Stop loss' military personnel will get extra pay

More than 2,700 Pennsylvania National Guard troops will benefit from plan.

By MIKE MERESCHAGIN
For The Valley Independent
mmereschagin@tribweb.com

The Defense Department is accepting claims for special pay from members of the military who were kept on active duty longer than their enlistment period.

The payments amount to $500 for each month military members were kept on duty under the controversial policy known as stop loss. The payments are retroactive to Sept. 11, 2001, so anyone who received their stop loss orders in the past eight years can file a claim for the special pay.

Stop loss has kept 2,744 Pennsylvania Army National Guard soldiers on duty longer than they planned, said Matthew Mazonkey, spokesman for Rep. John Murtha, the Johnstown Democrat who opposes the practice.

Overall, 185,000 people have been affected, according to Defense Department estimates.

About 10,000 Army, Army National Guard and Army Reserve soldiers serve today under stop-loss orders, according to Mazonkey.

"We're asking the same people to go back four or five times," Mazonkey said. "It's very disruptive for their future plans and their families. We've been trying to end it for several years."

Last year's defense spending bill set aside $72 million for the extra pay, but it applied only to those on active duty.

A supplemental defense spending bill passed this year added $534.4 million for the retroactive payments.

That might not be enough.

If every eligible person claims the benefit, it would cost $640 million, said Defense spokesman Lt. Col. Les Melnyk.

"The services ... will be required to pay for any extra cost," Melnyk said.

The average stop-loss deployment lasted seven months.

"That's a $3,500 check there for most people," Mazonkey said.

Only the Army still employs the practice, and officials plan to begin phasing it out next year, Melnyk said.

It could be used after that on a more limited basis to retain people with specials skills - say, special forces soldiers or linguists, Melnyk said.

Gettysburg Park boss reassigned over sex images

HARRISBURG (AP) — The superintendent of Gettysburg National Military Park told a newspaper he is being reassigned because U.S. Interior Department investigators discovered that he used his federal computer to view sexually explicit images.

John Latschar will begin Monday at the Historic Preservation Training Center in Frederick, Md., as a special assistant to the National Park Service's associate director for cultural resources.

Park service spokesman David Barna would not say why Latschar had been reassigned, calling it a personnel issue, but Latschar told the Evening Sun of Hanover he is being reassigned because of his misuse of the federal computer.

Latschar told the newspaper that "there's no excuse" for his behavior. He said he was "going through some rough personal and professional times" from 2004 to 2006, when he used his computer to search online for the images, which he said were like those found in a Playboy magazine.

Latschar didn't immediately return a message left by The Associated Press at his Gettysburg park office.

Latschar, in an e-mail to park employees obtained by the AP, apologized but did not mention the images.

"As I say goodbye to all you good folks, I would like, once again, to offer you my heartfelt apologies for what has happened," Latschar wrote.

"My greatest sorrow is the embarrassment I have brought upon my family, my friends, and you — my former employees — of whom I have always been so proud."

In his new job, Latschar will make the same $145,000 a year salary as he did while running the 6,000-acre historical Civil War site, Barna said.

Latschar began working at the park in 1994 and clashed repeatedly with preservationists.

The Interior Department's Office of Inspector General investigated anonymous allegations that Latschar had committed misconduct and engaged in criminal activity during his stewardship, but said last month that it had found no evidence to back up the accusations.

counts of conflict of interest, down from 17.

Patrick "P.J." Lavelle, a lower-level legislative aide, was given a deal to plead guilty to criminal conspiracy and conflict of interest, and have four other charges dropped.

Manzo's plea deal raises questions about the legal status of his wife and co-defendant, Rachel Manzo, former executive director of the House Democratic Policy Committee.

Last month, her lawyer, Bill Ward, filed a motion for a continuance, saying she was "engaged in negotiations with the commonwealth" and needed more time. Ward did not return a phone message Friday.

Details about plea agreements are important to defense attorneys as they prepare for trial.

"So if they're going to be used as witnesses at trial we know what kind of offers were made, what kind of deals were made to buy their testimony," said Bryan S. Walk, the lawyer for defendant Brett Cott, a former policy analyst and high-ranking legislative aide.

Walk and Matt Gover, the attorney for defendant Earl Mosley, a former personnel director, both said they have not had plea discussions with prosecutors.

"They haven't knocked on the door," Gover said. "And if they do, we'll listen, but right now we're preparing for trial."

Mike Palermo, who represents Annamarie Perretta-Rosepink, said he was ready to go to trial, "no questions asked."

Lawyers for the other defendants did not return phone messages.

The attorney general's office began what has become a wide-ranging investigation into possible legislative corruption after The Patriot-News, of Harrisburg, disclosed in January 2007 that millions in bonuses had been secretly handed out to employees of the Legislature.

Two of the defendants, former House Democratic Whip Mike Veon, D-Beaver, and Perretta-Rosepink, one of his top aides, are also facing separate corruption charges related to a nonprofit organization that Veon directed, the Beaver Initiative for Growth.

Trial for defendant Sean Ramaley, a former state representative, is scheduled for December. His lawyer last week filed court paperwork attempting to force the House Democratic leaders to turn over personnel files and work product that includes legislation that set new rules for construction sites.

The attorney general's office last week said Ramaley's attempt to subpoena college records of Stephen A. Webb, a key prosecution witness, was "woefully inadequate" and did not provide a reasonable legal basis for making the request.

Trial for the others is expected to get under way Jan. 19.

The trial schedule for the separate case involving Veon and Perretta-Rosepink has not been set.

Attorney General Tom Corbett, who is seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination next year, has been criticized because only Democrats have been charged in his investigation of practices that are widely believed to have been used by both parties in the General Assembly.

Earlier this week, The Philadelphia Inquirer reported that the former Republican House speaker, John Perzel, his former chief of staff and other House GOP figures had received letters offering them the chance to testify next week before the bonus case grand jury.

High-speed rail (FROM PAGE ONE)

Building America's Future to promote rail and other transportation projects.

The inclusion of the rail money in the stimulus bill sparked fierce competition among state officials, many of whom have long thirsted for speedy bullet trains like those currently operating in Europe and Japan.

The Obama administration initially hoped to begin awarding some of the $8 billion in September, but that timetable has been pushed back to later this year or early next.

The Federal Railroad Administration has received applications from 24 states seeking $50 billion for high-speed projects, more than six times the available funds.

The agency has also received 214 applications from 34 states totaling $7 billion to beef up service between cities by trains traveling less then 110 miles per hour. Those projects are also eligible for a share of the $8 billion.

Administration officials continue to talk up their vision of a rail renaissance, describing the $8 billion as a down payment.

They've also been trying to downplay expectations, given the likelihood that most states could go away empty-handed.

Joseph Szabo, Federal Railroad Administration administrator, said state interest in the high-speed rail program "far exceeds the funds available today, or next year or over the next five years."

Officials for companies who want to build the rail systems or supply the trains said they worry the administration will bend to pressure to spread the money around instead of concentrating it on a single project or two or three projects.

It's important to get at least a small section of one project up and running to build public support for more funding, said Tadashi Keneko, a representative of the Japan International Transportation Institute, which works with Japanese rail companies eager to enter the U.S. market.

In addition to the $8 billion, the White House requested Congress approve another $1 billion a year for the next five years for high-speed rail.

The House went further, proposing $4 billion for next year, but the Senate has approved only $1.5 billion.

Prison (FROM PAGE ONE)

The prison could provide benefits from infrastructure to business development to jobs, Croushore said.

"Yeah, it would be great to welcome a big auto plant or something here," he said. "These (estimated) 700 jobs or whatever it turns out to be are family-sustaining and recession-proof. That's what we need in this area."

Masontown Mayor Tom Loukota agreed.

He said a nearby Duke Energy power plant should be an incentive to prison planners.

Spinoff businesses and the potential of new employees purchasing housing in the area would benefit the community.

"If it doesn't come here, what are we going to do to offer industry in Masontown," Loukota said.

"When coal was king and money was flowing (in Masontown), the government took its share of it. Now it's time for us."

State Rep. Tim Mahoney, D-South Union, said the community has opened its arms to the potential development.

"I think the prison will bring economic development, believe it or not," he said yesterday. "It would be a shame to put it by the other prison (in Luzerne)."

His constituents have responded favorably.

"It's an industry," he said.

"It brings well-payir.g jobs you can raise a family on."

A weekly look at people who left the Valley

By JEFF PIKULSKY
Staff Writer
jpikulsky@tribweb.com

Growing up as a somewhat ornery and culturally curious youth in Monessen led the way to a lifetime of travel and adventure for Paul Kacik.

The 74-year-old said he was a mischievous boy in the formerly booming steel town.

Slovak in descent, Kacik said he was curious about his heritage and strived to become more cultured.

After college, Kacik set his sights on working overseas.

The 1952 Monessen High School graduate attended the University of Pittsburgh on a football scholarship.

He played end on offense and defense until an injury cut his career short.

He earned a degree in electrical engineering from Pitt and landed a job with General Electric Co. in Syracuse, N.Y.

"Shortly after, like about six or eight months, I started my overseas working," he said. "I went to Turkey. The job, it was at a radar site. It was highly classified in those days. We would monitor the launches from the Karpustin Yar area in Russia, where they launched the intercontinental ballistic missiles. I was a civilian but working on a joint American and Turkish air base."

After 1 1/2 years on that job, Kacik worked two years at a naval base in Trinidad.

"We were doing testing for different types of equipment, which were destined to be used on the early-warning (missile) sites in Alaska and Greenland," he said. "In those days, during the Cold War, it was in case the Russians sent over missiles. We were in Trinidad testing out the equipment we were going to use there to monitor the U.S. missiles from the test site and satellites from Kennedy Space Center."

In regards to his career plans, Kacik was open minded.

"They had a program where you changed jobs every three months and they had advanced classes that they gave us. That's what attracted me," he said. "I was anxious to go off on my own, being free and independent. I didn't necessarily want to leave Monessen, but I wanted to be independent."

Kacik worked for eight months at his original post in Turkey and then moved on to a spy mission.

"I moved to the northern part of Turkey on another Air Force site where General Electric had the contract," he said. "We would monitor a range of frequencies for communications that came from the Russian area that came from across the Black Sea."

Kacik said the pay was good, but the excitement and secrecy of the job and its perks were more enticing.

"It was because of the money to start with and then it sort of gets in your blood," he said. "We worked seven days a week, 12 hours a day. But, we got R and R every three months and we would pop off to Europe or wherever we wanted to go for a couple of weeks."

In 1962, Kacik left General Electric and decided to broaden his linguistic capabilities.

"I'd gotten interested in French language and French culture, and I had made a lot of money, so I decided to take off," he said.

"My plan was to come back and get a master's degree but, before I did, I was going to spend six months in France to study French."

Kacik studied at a school subsidized by the French government for half a year.

"I found out that six months wasn't enough to get fluent in a language, so I extended. I ended up there about a year," he said.

During his time in Paris, Kacik's co-worker from the Turkey air base, Ed "Mac" McClelland, a New York native, contacted him about taking a trip around the world.

"There was a little aspect of it that had to do with business which grew bigger and bigger," Kacik said. "The around-the-world trip never happened, but that's what it started out as."

The trip became somewhat of a treasure hunt.

"We went out West for a bunch of reasons," Kacik said. "We heard all kinds of stories about treasures in Turkey during the Ottoman times. There were massacres of the Armenians there. The Greeks were kicked out. There were gold burials in the Greek churches - all sorts of things like that.

"Then we learned about business in Samsun, Turkey, in the north central part of Turkey. We learned that they harvested lentil there. They used to shovel lentil into burlap sacks and they would export it to Lebanese business people, run them through a cleaning factory and send them 99.7 percent pure, exported to Europe, which uses a lot of lentil.

"When that happened, there was a considerable profit."

Kacik and McClelland committed to building start-up capital for their own lentil-cleaning factory.

"We said, 'Let's look into other things too; tobacco exports. Let's look into taking advantage of the minerals.' They had a number of minerals there."

On the tail end of a cross-country drive from New York to a school in Los Angeles to learn about the mineral industry, the travelling pals got sidetracked.

Gambling caught their interest at the time Dr. Edward Thorpe released his book, "Beat the Dealer," about a system designed to beat blackjack.

An MIT math professor, Thorpe persuaded a small group of students to help him cash in on a math-based card counting system he developed that routinely beat the blackjack odds.

"He just came out with the book," Kacik said. "We went down to Mexico and started learning how to count cards in blackjack.

"We went to Las Vegas. To make a long story short, we spent about three weeks there, we lost. When we did it in practice sessions, we won, but we actually lost there.

"We suspected cheating. In those days, there wasn't that much regulation on things. We gave it up because it wasn't as lucrative as we thought it would have been."

But Kacik and McClelland pressed on.

"We drove to Germany and bought a trailer that we could haul back with this Volkswagen, believe it or not, that slept four," Kacik said. "Then we drove down to Turkey and we started our kind of adventure. We called it 'The Big Adventure.'"

Kacik and McClelland teamed up with the native interpreter who had worked with them at the Turkish military site, Sabri Kitalpi.

"We formed a business with the three of us. It was an import-export business," Kacik said. "It was called KMK; for Kitalpi, McClelland and Kacik."

"Our main thrust at that time was arranging for a lentil-cleaning factory. We started writing letters to different companies who made those factories. We made up a business plan and then we tried to export, you name it. But this whole thing wasn't a successful enterprise.

"They had a law in Turkey where, if you fell under this law, you could export your own profits to foreign countries. There was a very strong currency exchange restriction there. But, they allowed you to export profits if you used foreign currency to build the company.

"But our competitors were big nitrogen factories, chemical plants and so on. No matter what we did, we couldn't seem to fall under that law. It was over a period of a year or so before we found that out."

Kacik said he and his partners were forced to abandon the plan.

"I didn't want to live in Turkey the rest of my life and, to take out profits, you would have to deal in something illegal, and their prisons aren't very nice," Kacik said with a laugh.

The trio switched to the travel industry.

"Now that was a successful enterprise," Kacik said. "We became general sales agents for KLM Airlines for that area of Turkey."

The three men turned the American military members in the area into clientele.

"We were attractive to KLM because we could get tickets sold to Americans who did a lot of travel there," Kacik said. "They had nobody in that area. When we sold tickets, our company got a commission."

The job came with a valuable perk.

"We got free travel throughout the world, wherever we wanted to go, as long as we flew KLM," Kacik said. "That went on from 1962 to 1966.

"In the process, I went to learn how to write tickets at the KLM airline office in Istanbul, and there I met my wife, Josephine. She was working at KLM Airlines. We're now married 45 years.

"She was born and

Westmoreland eyes $12 million pension fund payment

Unprecedented payment is needed to keep county's pension account solvent.

RICH CHOLODOFSKY
For The Valley Independent
rcholodofsky@tribweb.com

Even as Westmoreland County officials watch massive increases accrue in a pension fund for more than 800 retirees, they are preparing to make an unprecedented $12 million payment next year to keep the account solvent.

The $286 million retirement fund during the third quarter of 2009 gained a nearly 12 percent increase, as the account grew by $29.8 million. Earlier this year, the pension fund recouped an additional $23 million.

Westmoreland's retirement fund had previously dipped from an all-time high of $319 million in early 2008. It lost more than $87 million from the beginning of January 2008 through last May. It has since regained $52.8 million of that loss.

Still, state law requires counties to keep the fund entirely financed so there is enough money in the account to pay retirement benefits for every current pensioner and every employee on the payroll.

As a result, early estimates received by the county suggest taxpayers will have to pay as much as $12 million next year to keep the account fully funded.

The county last year paid out about $1 million in retirement benefits from the pension fund, according to Commissioner Tom Balya.

"It's illogical," Balya said. "We're funding it as if we're going to go out of business."

The commissioners want state lawmakers to change the system, so counties won't have to pay retirement benefits for workers still on the payroll.

For taxpayers, the existing system means a substantial outlay of cash. The $12 million payment estimated for next year would be the highest contribution taxpayers have ever made to the retirement account.

Balya said that money could come from the county's nearly $36 million surplus.

Controller Carmen Pedicone, who serves on the retirement board with the three county commissioners and Treasurer Kathalyn O'Brien, said the $12 million estimated payment could be lowered.

Pedicone said the pension account's recent gains could change an actuarial calculation that determines the yearly payment.

"Based upon that last quarter, I believe the number will go down," Pedicone said.

raised in Istanbul. She was Armenian, Maltese and Greek. Her father was a British citizen and that came down from the Maltese line, so she was a British citizen, too."

At the time, Kacik was 29. His bride-to-be was 25. The two married after seeing each other for two months.

"We took some nice honeymoons, three or four of them, one of them to the States. She had never been there before. I met her parents," Kacik said.

The newlyweds returned to America and Kacik eventually decided to commit to a long-term work relationship.

But he first spent three years with Airborne Instruments Laboratory n Long Island, N.Y.

"I was a tech rep again. I resumed where I left off," he said. "I worked a couple of field jobs in Florida and Nevada and also Long Island. Two years were spent in Oklahoma City. Our first child was born there."

In 1969, Kacik joined Hughes Aircraft Co. in Fullerton Calif., where he currently resides.

He retired in 2007.

The company sold air defense and air traffic control systems to foreign countries.

"I got promotions until I was the department head, that's the head of up to 50 engineers," Kacik said.

Kacik said he greatly values the time he spent in major cities around the world.

"It makes you worldly. I think it broadens one. You learn more. You're interested in world affairs. It's an adventure, which attracts all of us," he said. "I'd say maybe London was the most enjoyable. But they were all enjoyable. Saudi Arabia was enjoyable because of great living conditions. It was really plush."

There will always be a special place in Kacik's heart for Monessen.

Kacik comes back at least twice a year to see his mother, Katherine.

"I'll tell you what's nice about Monessen: people know one another," he said. "There's always a connection, and that's nice. The camaraderie is great."

Kacik spent eight months penning an autobiography and assembling it by hand.

The 383-page book is a journal that features photographs from his many excursions and testimony to how travel enhanced his life.

"It was only for my family. It's not a published book," Kacik said.

"It's dedicated to my children and grandchildren. In my dedication comments, I encourage them to do the same thing."

CORRECTION

The parents of retired Lt. Gen Joseph I. Yakovac Jr. were incorrectly identified Thursday as "the late Joseph and Mary Yakovac." Joseph Yakovac is still alive and living in Johnstown, Pa.

This sign sits outside a home in Philadelphia. Home resales rose far more than expected last month to the highest level in more than two years as buyers scrambled to complete their purchases before a tax credit for first-time owners expires.

Soaring home sales top forecast for September

Expiring tax credit sparks 9.4 percent increase.

By ALAN ZIBEL and ALEX VEIGA
AP Real Estate Writers

WASHINGTON — Racing to complete their purchases before a tax credit for first-time owners expires, homebuyers pushed sales up last month by the largest amount in more than 26 years.

After jumping 9.4 percent in September, home resales are up nearly 24 percent from the bottom in January, the National Association of Realtors said Friday. But the housing market's momentum could easily peter out if Congress doesn't extend the credit of up to $8,000 for first-time buyers beyond its current Nov. 30 deadline.

John Kindschi, a 33-year-old aircraft mechanic who lives north of Seattle, didn't want to miss out. After a yearlong search, he and his family bought a three-bedroom house for $206,000, completing the purchase last week.

"It was getting down to crunch time," he said. "We had no idea if the credit was going to be extended."

Nationwide sales rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.57 million last month, from a downwardly revised pace of 5.1 million in August. It was the strongest month two years and beat economists' forecast of 5.35 million, according to Thomson Reuters. Sales, however, are still down 23 percent from their peak four years ago.

In another positive sign, the inventory of unsold homes on the market fell almost 8 percent to 3.6 million. That's less than an eight-month supply at the current sales pace, and the lowest level since March 2007.

The competition for low-priced foreclosures has become fierce in places like Las Vegas and Southern California. Aldo Martin, 28 of Covina, Calif., had to put offers on 16 houses before having one accepted this week.

"We'd go look at eight houses and if we liked five of them, make offers," said Martin, a sales supervisor. "Your odds are better. We got aggressive."

Marty Rodriguez, owner of a Century 21 real estate brokerage east of Los Angeles, said half of her transactions last month were low-priced foreclosures and short sales, where the sales price is lower than the mortgage balance.

"You have so many buyers in that lower price range," she said. "Sometimes my agents are writing five offers for one buyer on different properties just trying to get one property — and not getting accepted. It's a little crazy."

Still, economists caution that the pain from the worst housing bust since the Great Depression probably isn't over yet.

While home sales and housing construction have risen steadily after hitting bottom earlier this year, most economists believe that prices, which recently stabilized, will resume their descent. The median sales price last month was $174,900, down almost 9 percent from $191,200 a year earlier, and slightly lower than August's median of $177,300.

The main reasons prices are weak: Unemployment and foreclosures are still rising. With the current 9.8 percent jobless rate expected to rise as high as 10.5 percent next year, foreclosures will continue to set records.

Nationwide, more than 3 million households are either three months behind on their payments or in foreclosure, according to First American CoreLogic, a research firm.

Many delinquent borrowers are still being evaluated for help under the Obama administration's mortgage assistance plan. If they don't qualify, the odds are high they will lose their homes.

Fears about job losses are stifling some sales, said David Hudson, an agent with Exit Realty Platinum outside Atlanta.

2009 bank closings at 100

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bank closings for the year hit 100 on Friday when regulators shut down Partners Bank in Florida. Financial institutions nationwide have collapsed under the weight of soured real estate loans and the Great Recession.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. took over Partners Bank, a small bank in Naples, with $68.7 million in assets and $63.4 million in deposits. Stonegate Bank, based in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., agreed to buy the deposits and assets of Partners Bank.

The 100 failures are the most in a year since 1992 at the height of the savings-and-loan crisis. They have cost the federal deposit insurance fund about $25 billion so far this year, and hundreds more bank failures are expected to raise the cost to around $100 billion through 2013.

Depositors' money is not in danger. The FDIC is backed by the government, and deposits are guaranteed up to $250,000 per account. But the deposit insurance fund has fallen into the red.

THE WORLD BRIEFLY

Health care bill tops $1 trillion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health care legislation taking shape in the House carries a price tag of at least $1 trillion over a decade, significantly higher than the target President Barack Obama has set, congressional officials said Friday as they struggled to finish work on the measure for a vote early next month.

Democrats have touted an unreleased Congressional Budget Office estimate of $871 billion in recent days, a total that numerous officials acknowledge understates its true cost by $150 billion or more. That figure excludes several items designed to improve benefits for Medicare and Medicaid recipients and providers, as well as public health programs and more, they added.

The officials who disclosed the details did so on condition of anonymity, saying they were not authorized to discuss them publicly.

Some moderate Democrats have expressed reluctance to support a bill as high as $1 trillion. Last month, Obama said in a nationally televised address before a joint session of Congress that he preferred a package with a price tag of around $900 billion.

Drones protect ships from pirates

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — For the first time, sophisticated U.S. military surveillance drones capable of carrying missiles have begun patrolling waters off Somalia in hopes of stemming rising piracy.

Three ships have been seized in a week off Africa's lawless eastern coast and Vice Adm. Robert Moeller, the deputy commander for the U.S. Africa Command, said pirates continue to pose a significant challenge.

With the monsoon season now ended, there have been a rash of attacks as pirates return to the open seas. More than 130 crew members from seven ships are currently being held, including about 70 from the latest attacks.

In an effort to stem the surge, unmanned U.S. military surveillance planes called MQ-9 Reapers stationed on the island nation of Seychelles are being deployed to patrol the Indian Ocean in search of pirates, Moeller told The Associated Press in an interview at command headquarters in Stuttgart, Germany. The patrols began this week, military officials said.

The 36-foot-long Reapers are the size of a jet fighter, can fly about 16 hours and are capable of carrying a dozen guided bombs and missiles. They are outfitted with infrared, laser and radar targeting.

Military officials said Friday the drones would not immediately be fitted with weaponry, but they did not rule out doing so in the future.

Stocks end week lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors dumped stocks and locked in profits Friday after the glow of a week full of strong earnings reports faded.

The retreat came as cautious forecasts from railroads caused unease about the economy and a rising dollar pushed prices of commodities lower, which hurt materials and energy stocks.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 109 points to end the week with a modest loss.

Traders appeared eager to collect gains after earnings reports for the July-September quarter came in far stronger than forecast, which had pushed stock indexes up more than 6 percent in the three weeks leading into Friday.

'PENNSYLVANIA CASH 5'

No winners in 'Cash 5' jackpot

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Today's "Pennsylvania Cash 5" jackpot will be worth at least $550,000 because no player matched the five winning numbers drawn in Friday's game.

Lottery officials said 143 players matched four numbers and won $214.50 each; 4,414 players matched three numbers and won $11.50 each; and 54,826 players matched two numbers and won $1 each.

Cheers 'n Jeers

Here is a critical look at some of the events that helped shape life in the Mid-Mon Valley area during the past week:

For the Mon Valley NAACP's 49th annual Human Rights Banquet, which will be held at 2 p.m. today in Cal U's Natali Student Center. This always-worthwhile event will feature David Hall of KDKA-TV as master of ceremonies and Sheron Clark of the Pittsburgh Commission on Human Relations as keynote speaker.

Also at 2 p.m. today is a "Showboat" performance at the Charleroi Area High School Auditorium. The hard-working senior citizens who produce this show deserve your support.

Blue Dogs de-barked

Brad BUMSTED

The Blue Dogs, in the end, proved to be lap dogs.

The Blue Dog caucus, a group of fiscally conservative state House Democrats from Western Pennsylvania, at one point held the key to a no-tax state budget.

But they rolled over.

Flash back to early August, when House Democratic leaders were sending a budget they despised (S.B. 850) to Democratic Gov. Ed Rendell so Rendell could line-item veto key portions but keep enough to pay state workers.

That's exactly what happened. Rendell cut $12 billion from that budget to gain "leverage" over lawmakers to ratchet up spending and hike taxes.

That action caused all the heartache with day care groups and other social service providers, who wouldn't get state checks until mid-October as a result of the 101-day budget impasse. A $27.8 billion budget was approved and signed into law Oct. 9.

Back in August, Blue Dog leader Nick Kotik, a Democrat from Coraopolis, had the answer: a no-tax budget that cut state spending across the state board, except for a few vital services, and provided $150 million more for basic education. The final deal approved earlier this month will spend $300 million more on school districts.

The House Republicans were prepared to support Kotik on an amendment to S.B. 850. Senate Republican leaders supported the Kotik proposal. With a handful of Blue Dogs on board, it could have happened.

In the end, the Kotik amendment was never brought to a vote.

Kotik and the other Blue Dogs agreed to pull it in response to their leaders agreeing to publicly declare that the 16 percent income tax increase sought by Rendell was dead.

But at that point, the income tax was dead anyway. House Democratic leaders tried through June and July to round up the votes and they weren't there.

No question, the Blue Dogs played a major role in blocking Rendell's proposed income tax hike.

The idea that a caucus would buck leadership and governor of their own party would have been unheard of 10 years ago. Kotik, a back bencher, suddenly emerged as a genuine leader. He put the Blue Dogs together out of frustration with the ultra-liberal tendencies within the House Democratic Caucus.

The Blue Dogs, combined with unified opposition from House Republicans, and a refusal to deal by Senate Republicans, scuttled the income tax boost.

But the Blue Dogs didn't go far enough. If they had stood their ground Aug. 3, the budget might have been wrapped up that day with no tax hikes.

The final deal in October raises taxes on cigarettes and businesses.

Lawmakers spent thousands more on per diems, flat payments for food and lodging, during the remainder of August, September and October. Some day care centers closed citing the lack of state funds, according to the Department of Public Welfare.

On the final tax vote, only two Blue Dogs, Rep. Joseph Petrarca, D-Vandergrift, and Rep. John Pallone, D-New Kensington, barked. They were the only Democrats to vote against it.

Most of the Blue Dog Democrats showed in the end they were team players.

They could have rocked the Capitol Aug. 3, but chose to take an obvious victory.

From their perspective, getting their leaders to declare that the income tax was dead, was significant and it truly ended that debate.

It was a pivotal day in the historic budget battle. Some Democrats may think about it again next year when Republicans are campaigning against them citing their votes for the "$1 billion state tax increase."

YOUR OPINION

End all property taxes

To the Editor:

To all the voters, when you talk or write to the candidates that are running for governor, ask them how they stand on abolishment of all three property taxes.

These include the school, municipal and county taxes. If only the school tax is abolished, we will still be liable to the assessments/reassessments of our properties and our county and municipal property taxes will still keep going up along with the sheriff sales, etc.

We will still be paying rent to the government and our homes will never be ours. We don't want to hear the words "reduction or relief." Tell your senator and representative that we are tired of the 30-year lies about " reducing" property taxes on our homes and you want them "totally abolished." We are tired of all of the lies we keep getting from our representatives and senators and we are aware of how costly these sheriff sales and assessments are to the taxpayers.

They are all fraudulent promises and we won't stand for it any more. Don't let them tell you otherwise. Please go to web site grandoldusa.com for more information.

ANOTHER VIEW

The Post-Standard, Syracuse, N.Y., on Social Security:

The prospect of the federal government punishing Grandma and Grandpa is repugnant — so politically unpalatable, in fact, that President Barack Obama is urging Congress to send every Social Security recipient $250 to make up for this year's lack of a cost-of-living adjustment in their retirement checks.

But the perception that no COLA is punishing or depriving seniors is inaccurate. When the measurable cost of living actually goes down, how do you justify a COLA boost?

The recession still imposes brutal costs on workers and their families. Taxpayers have taken on well over $1 trillion in debt to bail out financial institutions and stimulate the economy. Wars in Iraq and Afghanistan still cost the Treasury billions each month. If the federal government can't justify a modest cost-of-living boost for Social Security recipients, neither can it afford the estimated $13 billion price tag for a one-time payment. ...

Social Security COLAs have come to seem automatic since 1975. Last year the boost was a hefty 5.8 percent, driven by increases in energy costs. Since 2005, there have been 15.9 percent worth of COLA hikes. And don't forget: This year's economic stimulus package included $250 checks for each Social Security recipient.

The Consumer Price Index that measures inflation actually decreased this year, along with gas and energy prices. Without inflation, there is no rationale for a COLA. And if a COLA is not warranted, neither is a one-time payment.

War on Fox unbecoming

Cokie and Steve ROBERTS

Presidents usually turn to their secretaries of state for foreign-policy advice. But Barack Obama must have been channeling Hillary Clinton when he decided to attack Fox News.

It was Clinton, of course, who blamed her husband's troubles during Monica Madness on a "vast right-wing conspiracy." Now White House communications director Anita Dunn is accusing Fox of operating as "a wing of the Republican Party."

A vast Fox wing conspiracy?

Every White House, in every age, has blamed the press for its problems. In 1798, at the urging of President John Adams, Congress passed the Alien and Sedition Acts, making it a crime to publish "any false, scandalous and malicious writing." Opposition editors were arrested, and their papers shuttered. Compared to Adams, even Richard Nixon, who kept an enemies list and wiretapped journalists, was a piker.

So Obama is no different than his predecessors when it comes to mauling the media. But that's the problem. He said he WOULD be different. He would rise above the petty partisan bickering that has flooded the capital with verbal acid rain for years now. Apparently, those claims of civility are "no longer operable" (to quote another White House operative, Ron Ziegler, in the middle of Watergate).

The White House has every reason to be frustrated and furious with Fox commentators like Glenn Beck, Sean Hannity and Bill O'Reilly who specialize in half-truths and downright falsehoods about the president and his administration. Beck — the latest and shrillest addition to Fox's evening lineup — has called Obama a racist who "hates white people" and compared him, several times, to Hitler.

Clearly, Team Obama is following the same strategy they followed during the campaign — don't be swift-boated, don't let attacks go unchallenged, fight back. The White House is also worried that other media outlets will let the Fox blowhards set the agenda with their unrelenting and often unfounded assaults. Going back to the campaign, Obama has been dogged by a series of lies that will not die: He's a Muslim, a foreigner and a supporter of "death panels."

That's why the president's senior adviser, David Axelrod, warned George Stephanopoulos on ABC's "This Week" not to take Fox seriously: "It's really not news — it's pushing a point of view. And the bigger thing is that other news organizations like yours ought not to treat them that way."

Still, the campaign against Fox makes little sense. For one thing, the White House is deliberately blurring the line between news shows and talk shows. True, Beck and company's high-decibel, pre-scripted act has more in common with professional wrestling than professional journalism. But Fox also employs many fine reporters and producers, including some Steve has taught at George Washington University, who have nothing to do with the prime-time shout fests.

More to the point, Obama's aides are sounding defensive and small-minded. They are diminishing themselves while elevating their enemies to the status of equals. No wonder the most complete coverage of this spat can be found at foxnews.com. To paraphrase the popular McDonald's ads: They're lovin' it. (And, by the way, we've heard no complaints from the White House about MSNBC's ardently pro-Obama show hosts.)

Strategy that works during a campaign does not always translate to the White House. Voters expect their politicians to be nasty and overheated. But they expect their presidents to be calm and dignified. Obama is really good at cool. So why stoop to Glenn Beck's level? And give him all that free publicity?

Team Obama was spoiled during the campaign by highly favorable press coverage that flummoxed their rivals (just ask Hillary). They benefited from what we have always believed is the most consistent bias in journalism: Reporters are in favor of a good story and against whoever is in power.

Like Obama, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, Bill Clinton and George W. Bush all profited from being outsiders who challenged a familiar and fatigued establishment. (The only winner in 33 years who followed a different strategy was George H.W. Bush).

Once the election is over, however, the pattern shifts. The press tilts against the man who has gone from insurgent to insider; criticizing a president is a better story than praising him, and that's a good thing.

Every president has enormous ability to shape and control what the public hears and sees; only an independent media can keep him honest and hold him accountable.

So the White House should stop whining about a vast Fox wing conspiracy. It goes with the territory.

Keep flu from crashing your holiday party

Experts say make sure everything is clean and cut down on risks.

By MICHAEL HILL
Associated Press Writer

Is it safe to party when swine flu threatens to crash your bash?

It's a question many revelers may be asking this year as the holiday party season coincides with an anxiety-provoking flu season.

The good news is that while it is true that mingling over punch and canapes can help spread the H1N1 virus, health and entertaining experts say it's possible to throw a holiday party without making everyone wear surgical masks and hazmat suits.

It's a question of managing risk.

"Party. Party cautiously," advises Dr. Stephen Morse, professor of epidemiology at Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health. That means keep things clean, be careful with finger food, forget the punch bowl and maybe even reconsider the mistletoe.

And remember to have fun.

"Just like we say with terrorists, you really don't want to let the flu win," said Dr. Shira Doron, an infectious disease physician at Tufts Medical Center in Boston.

Swine flu is spread mainly through coughing or sneezing, though people also can be infected by touching something with flu viruses on it and then touching their mouth or nose. So basic common-sense rules apply for parties.

Do not throw a party or attend a party if you have a fever, cough or other flu symptoms. Keep your hands clean. Cough and sneeze into your elbow. Take steps to make sure guests do the same. Party planners suggest placing bottles of hand sanitizer and tissues in plain view to send a subtle signal.

"Obviously, the nature of parties is all about mixing and mingling, and that's about the opposite of what people tell you to do as far as the flu season," said Jennifer Sbranti, founder and editor-in-chief of hostesswiththemostess.com. "But it's really all about taking some precautions."

For party food, think single servings.

Avoid offering chips, candies, nuts or any food in big, open bowls that people could reach their potentially contaminated hands into.

"A hand going into a bowl is not a good thing," said Doron.

Instead, consider serving individual portions of hors d'oeuvres such as peanuts or cheese cubes on little pleated paper cups or small appetizer plates, said Denise Vivaldo, author of "The Entertaining Encyclopedia: Essential Tips for Hosting the Perfect Party."

Sbranti suggests serving crudite in little glass votive candle holders, salads in tiny Chinese food-style takeout containers or even french fries in paper snow cone cups. Culinarymedianetwork.com chief executive officer Jennifer Iannolo said soup can be served in espresso cups and desserts in ramekins.

"I would recommend having fun with it," said Iannolo.

Covered food is better. Sbranti said hosts might want to plate and serve the food instead of laying out a buffet.

Either way, consider leaving the punch bowl in the china closet. Dipping used cups into a communal bowl is never a great idea, flu season or no. Ladles lessen risk, but punch bowls still offer a large surface area for germs to land on.

Doron suggests serving drinks from narrow-necked bottles. Sbranti recommends beverage dispensers with lids and side spouts.

Make sure your guests can keep track of their drink glasses. Party supply stores offer everything from wine charms to hook around glass stems to stretchable colored bands that fit around beer bottles.

And don't expect miracles. Being in proximity to people — on a bus, in the office, at a party — simply has inherent risks.

White House pushes healthy eating for kids

First lady shares nutritious recipes that children love.

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Michelle Obama wants to make sure children have healthy choices when they get the munchies. As part of a "healthy kids fair" she hosted on the South Lawn of the White House on Wednesday, chefs demonstrated a variety of easy, kid-friendly and healthy recipes, including these ideas for a popcorn medley, an apple crisp and baked eggs.

Associated Press

First lady Michelle Obama exercises with a hula hoop during a healthy kids fair on the South Lawn of the White House Wednesday.

Sweet and Zesty Popcorn

Start to finish: 5 minutes
Servings: 4
1 bag microwaveable popcorn, preferably low-fat
1/2 cup small pretzel rods or sticks
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup shelled roasted peanuts
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/3 cup Parmesan cheese

Prepare the popcorn according to package directions. Transfer the cooked popcorn to a large bowl. Add the remaining ingredients and toss lightly, trying not to break the pretzels. Keeps for 2 days in an airtight container.

Baked Sliced Apples

Start to finish: 1 hour (15 minutes active)
Servings: 6
6 apples, cored and chopped
1 tablespoon butter, cut into small pieces
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup maple syrup, brown sugar or honey
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup rolled oats
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup raisins or other small dried fruit
1/4 cup apple juice

Heat the oven to 350 F. Coat a large baking pan with cooking spray.

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients, mixing well. Transfer to the prepared baking pan and bake for 45 minutes, or until a golden crust forms. Serve warm.

Baked Eggs
Start to finish: 20 minutes
Servings: 8
6 large eggs
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
1/2 tablespoon butter
1 1/2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 3/4 cups peeled and diced potatoes
2 cups finely chopped swiss chard (or any other finely diced or chopped vegetable)
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
1 cup cooked turkey breakfast sausage (sliced, diced or chopped)

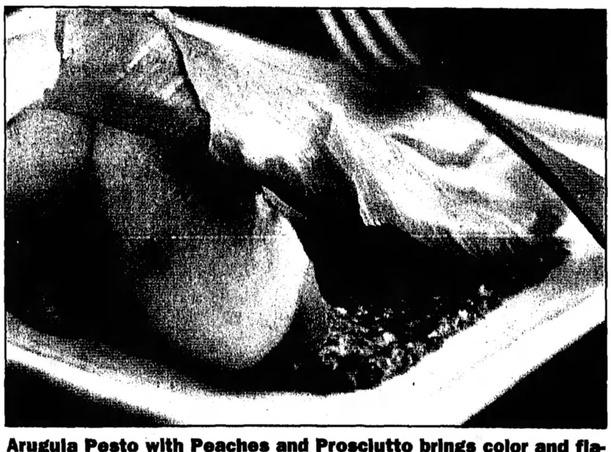
Heat the oven to 300 F.

In a medium bowl, lightly beat the eggs. Season with salt and pepper.

Heat a large, oven-safe skillet over medium. Add the oil and butter. When the butter has melted, add the potatoes and chard.

Saute until the potatoes begin to brown and are tender, about 5 minutes. Transfer to a bowl and set aside.

Return the skillet to the heat and add the eggs. Just as the eggs begin to set on the bottom, top with the potatoes, chard and sausage in an even layer. Sprinkle with cheese, then place the pan in the oven and bake until the eggs are fully cooked and the cheese browns.



Arugula Pesto with Peaches and Prosciutto brings color and flavor quickly and easily to any gathering.

Drizzle pesto over peaches

By The Associated Press

This variation on the classic prosciutto and melon platter is an easy way to add bright, fresh flavors to a dinner or holiday gathering. The pesto can be prepared an hour or so ahead, but if you refrigerate it, let it warm to room temperature (and mix it well) before serving. And if you're pressed for time, steal this serving idea but use purchased pesto.

Arugula Pesto with Peaches and Prosciutto
Start to finish: 15 minutes
Servings: 4 to 6
4 tablespoons olive oil, divided
2 cloves garlic, not peeled
1/4 cup pine nuts
3 cups packed arugula
1/4 cup grated pecorino cheese
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Salt, to taste
3 peaches, cored and cut into wedges
12 slices prosciutto

In a small skillet over medium-low, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil. Add the garlic and cook until soft, about 3 to 4 minutes. Set aside.

In another skillet over medium-low, toast the pine nuts, stirring constantly, until lightly browned and fragrant, about 3 to 4 minutes.

Peel and mince the garlic. In a food processor, combine the garlic, pine nuts, arugula, cheese and lemon juice. Pulse until a coarse paste forms. Then, with the processor running, slowly drizzle in the remaining olive oil until well combined. Season with salt.

Arrange the peaches and prosciutto on a plate, wrapping prosciutto around some of the peach wedges, if desired. Drizzle with pesto.

Obama attempting to help anemic Democrats

President defending allies whose losses would embarrass the White House.

By PHILIP ELLIOTT

Associated Press

President Barack Obama, flanked by Massachusetts Gov. Deval Patrick, right, and Lt. Gov. Tim Murray, gestures during a fundraiser for Patrick on Friday in Boston.

BOSTON — President Barack Obama lent his popularity and cash-raising abilities to embattled fellow Democrats on Friday, defending White House allies whose losses would be an embarrassment for the president.

Obama began a day of politicking with a quick "official" event at Cambridge's Massachusetts Institute of Technology to challenge the nation to lead the global economy in clean energy. But even as he stood in front of the seal of the presidency, Obama didn't forget politics.

He praised Massachusetts Gov. Deval Patrick's "leadership and vision," saying he has endeavored to make his state "a clean energy leader" — remarks likely to earn Patrick favorable local coverage and which come free to his campaign.

Obama's compliments were just as glowing during the fundraiser that followed, where he brought in $600,000 for Patrick's 2010 re-election bid. However, the president leavened his praise with a heavier-than-usual dose of reality about the governor's race in a climate hostile to the incumbent Democrat.

Obama acknowledged that he once thought Patrick couldn't win in the first place. Gladly proven wrong, he now says Patrick's "re-election is not a foregone conclusion."

Obama's poll numbers are head and shoulders above Patrick's. A Suffolk University poll last month found only 29 percent of voters responding that Patrick deserved another term.

Also, Obama planned to defend Sen. Chris Dodd, who faces an uphill climb next year in Connecticut. The Democratic lawmaker has become a close White House ally in efforts to overhaul financial industry regulations.

Obama's efforts to protect the 2010 duo came even as some of his aides looked at Democrats' chances in more immediate races — including the fast-approaching Nov. 3 gubernatorial race in Virginia — with skepticism.

Obama travels Tuesday to that state to campaign on behalf of Democrat Creigh Deeds in a gubernatorial contest that is shaping up to be the GOP's to lose. Deeds is trailing Republican Bob McDonnell in the race for the seat left open by term-limited Democratic Gov. Tim Kaine.

Some Democratic allies of the White House privately say the race already is over. Even as Obama openly campaigns for Deeds, they are trying to insulate the president from fallout from any loss by arguing that Deeds is a flawed candidate who has run a flawed campaign.

They want to avoid having Deeds' race seen as a test of Obama, the party standard-bearer who was elected in an electoral landslide just a year ago and who has campaigned for Deeds.

The White House publicly resists the notion that it's abandoning Deeds, noting that the president is continuing to raise money for him, has allowed his image to be included in advertising for him, and is traveling back to Virginia next week to campaign for him.

But Obama aides are realistic about Deeds' chances in a state that Obama won last November. That hard-fought victory was especially prized since Virginia was reliably Republican in national races before that.

For most of the week, Obama has been pairing official events with political ones — a scheduling tactic that significantly shifts the costs of flying the president to fundraisers from campaigns to taxpayers generally.

Federal Election Commission guidelines say campaigns must reimburse the government for only the equivalent of a first-class fare for each political traveler on each leg of the trip. When there's an official event in the mix, the reimbursement owed is cut to an even smaller amount, based on the percentage of time that the president and political aides spent on political duties versus official ones.

Later Friday, for instance, Obama planned to tour a small business with Dodd before appearing at a fundraiser expected to raise $1 million. It was Obama's sixth scheduled fundraiser this week.

Earlier in the week, Obama campaigned in New Jersey, where Democratic Gov. Jon Corzine also is seeking re-election on Nov. 3. He also raised $3 million for Democrats during appearances in New York. In addition to Virginia, he will campaign next week in Florida.

N.J. campaign for governor hard hitting

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The three main candidates for governor of New Jersey have come out swinging in their final debate before Election Day.

Republican Chris Christie, Democratic Gov. Jon Corzine and independent Chris Daggett say there are deep differences in how they'd tackle the state's persistent tax issues.

Daggett said Corzine has led the state to "fiscal ruin" and that Christie's campaign is "without substance."

Corzine said he has taken steps toward reducing property taxes.

And Christie said Daggett's plan relies on a gimmick.

Polls indicate a very close race between Christie and Corzine, with Daggett attracting up to 20 percent of the voters surveyed.

TJ nips BVA's 'warriors'

Unbeaten Jaguars settle for six-point victory over Leps.

By BRIAN HERMAN

PLEASANT HILLS — Thomas Jefferson's football team hasn't lost a conference game in its stadium in more than a decade.

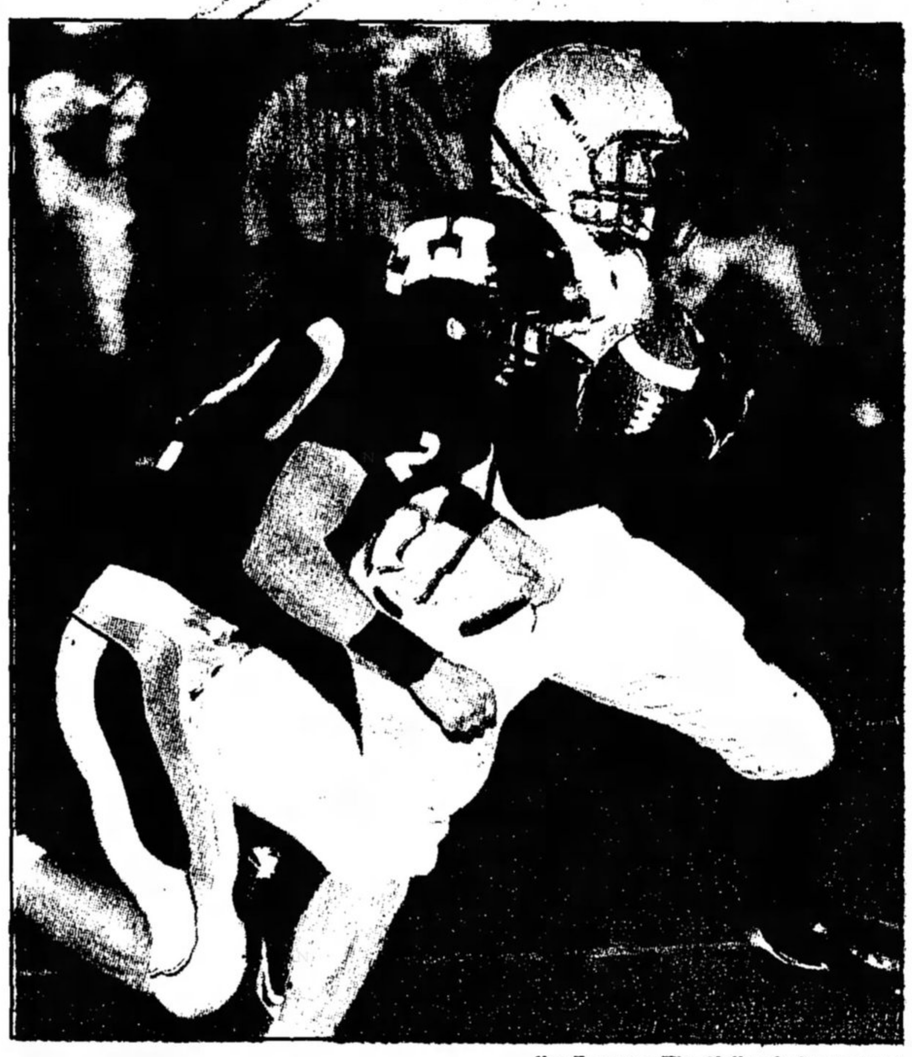
So it didn't come as much of a surprise that the unbeaten Jaguars clinched at least a tie for another Big 7 Conference title by beating visiting Belle Vernon Area Friday night.

What was a surprise was the final score.

The Jaguars, who had won their first seven games by an average of 34 points, had to hold on for a 26-20 victory.

"It was like the old Belle Vernon-TJ games," said first-year Leps coach Aaron Krepps. "Our kids stepped up and made some big plays.

"We made some adjustments at halftime. I thought we stuck it right to them in the second half. We were down three touchdowns, but we battled back. Our kids are warriors and I couldn't be prouder of them."



Jim Ference/The Valley Independent

While Krepps was happy with his team's performance, Thomas Jefferson coach Bill Cherpak didn't like what he saw from his club.

"I knew they were good but we gave up big plays," he said. "We should have put the game away in the first half. We're not that good that we can just step on the field and win."

TJ (8-0, 5-0) started out like it was going to be another Jaguar romp when they scored two touchdowns in the opening 6:32 to go up 13-0.

Sam Johnston, who finished seven of 15 for 198 yards, hit Jim Giansante for a 25-yard score on a third and 17 with 3:31 gone in the game.

Three minutes later, Johnston threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Ed Hasis, three plays after the two teamed up on a 42-yarder.

BVA (4-4, 2-3), however, ended TJ's shutout streak at three games when Brandon Dilmore, who threw for all three of the Leps' touchdowns, connected on a 63-yard bomb to sophomore Jake Burrit with 2:16 left in the first quarter.

Johnston gave the Jaguars a 20-7 halftime lead when he ran over from the five with 9:41 remaining in the second period. The touchdown came five plays after Mike Terpin intercepted Dilmore at the Leps' 31.

BVA had a chance of trimming the lead late in the first half when the Leps drove from their 35 to the TJ 20 but on a fourth and three Jake Campbell was tackled for a 3-yard loss on a pass from Dilmore.

TJ upped the lead to 26-7 with 7:30 to go in the third quarter on a 28-yard toss to Giansante.

The Leps, however, made things interesting in the fourth quarter.

On the third play of the periods, Dilmore hit Burrit with a 21-yard touchdown pass.

BVA scored again with 35 seconds remaining when Dilmore threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Cody Williams to end a nine-play, 83-yard drive.

The Jaguars, however, recovered the onside kick to wrap up their 26th straight conference win.

LEFTOVERS: The Leps' Matt Green ran for a game-high 101 yards on 23 carries ... Burrit finished with three catches for 105 yards ... Giansante had four receptions for 125 yards ... TJ played without leading rusher Ryan Ruffing, who is sidelined for at least four weeks with a collarbone injury ... BVA can clinch a playoff spot with a win at home over Elizabeth Forward Friday with TJ visiting West Mifflin.

Cougars don't get whistles

Extended plays result in heartbreaking 20-18 loss to Washington.

By BILL HUGHES
For The Valley Independent

WASHINGTON — One whistle.

On two separate occasions in the waning moments of Charleroi's heartbreaking 20-18 Interstate Conference loss at Washington, a blown whistle at the correct time would have given Charleroi the inside track for the team's first playoff berth since 2004.

Instead, Charleroi (5-3) now has to beat first place and undefeated Mt. Pleasant and get some help to make the post-season.

"Those kids have busted their tails the whole season," Charleroi coach Luke Mollis said nodding towards the emotional Cougars' locker room.

"For this to happen to these kids ...," Mollis trailed off.

The Cougars were one play form wrapping up a win, and they had the ball with a third-and-one at the Washington 37 with 1:20 left.

One yard would give the Cougars a first down and since Washington (6-2) only had one timeout left, that one yard would give Charleroi the win.

As he had been called on to do 39 times up to that point in the game, Charleroi quarterback Tommy Thorpe turned and handed off to sophomore tailback Quentin Briggs.

Briggs followed his blocks and went off the right side behind mammoth tackle Zach Hooks for the first down, but as Briggs was being tackled to the muddy field, the first questionable no-call took place.

With no whistle being blown, Briggs had the football ripped from his hands and Washington's Marquis Brown took the ball and raced 66 yards to tie the score with 1:08 left.

"I don't know, it was close," Mollis said when asked about the non-call. "I asked a couple of them (officials) who should have made the call and not one owned up to it."

The second questionable no-call came on the ensuing two-point conversion that gave the Little Prexies the game-winning points.

After using its last timeout to set up a two-point attempt, Brown, Washington's quarterback, ran a keeper up the middle but was stopped short of the goal line.

But the problem for Charleroi was that no one blew the play dead despite Brown's lack of forward progress.

"He was stopped for a full two seconds," Mollis said. "We stood him up."

After the Cougars held the Little Prexies to a three-and-out on the game's first drive, they took over in great position at the Washington 39 but the guests could not take advantage of the short real estate.

On its next drive, Washington drove to the Charleroi 11, but Zach Barnes fumbled and the Cougars recovered.

After holding Charleroi to a three-and-out, the Little Prexies scored the first points of the game with 1:15 left in the opening quarter.

After making the Cougars punt from deep in their own territory, the Little Prexies needed one play and 15 seconds for Daron Whitaker to race 39 yards to paydirt.

The Little Prexies fumbled the extra point snap and missed a pass, so the score remained 6-0.

The Cougars marched right down the field to take the lead and it all started with a 25-

CARMICHAELS — Before Friday's Tri-County South Conference contest with Carmichaels, Monessen coach Andy Pacak gave his team a little history lesson.

"I told them the last time we made a big run in the playoffs two years ago, this game right here was our statement game," Pacak said. "We used this game as a springboard and built some great momentum for the rest of the way.

"I told the players it was important that we come here and play well and get ready for the playoffs."

That was in 2007 when Monessen beat Carmichaels 48-21 en route to an 11-1 record and a trip to the semifinals of the WPIAL Class A playoffs.

The Greyhounds earned an A-plus as they throttled the Mikes, 41-6. Monessen dominated from the opening whistle, losing the shutout when the Mikes' Anthony Farrar ran 29 yards for a touchdown with 23 seconds to play on a running clock against the Monessen reserves.

"You'd like to have the shutout, but I told our starters those kids come to practice, too, and deserve a chance to play," Pacak said. "But, all in all, I was very pleased with our overall effort on both sides of the ball."

With the win, Monessen (6-2, 6-0) ran its winning streak to six and clinched a tie for the conference crown. Carmichaels, meanwhile, dropped to 3-3 in the conference and 3-5 overall.

The Greyhounds beat the Mikes up at the line of scrimmage, opening big holes for Brett Crenshaw and Trae Cook, who combined to rush for 120 yards and score four touchdowns.

On defense, Monessen harassed the hosts all night, limiting the Mikes to 106 total yards — 80 coming on the game's final drive against the reserves.

"We challenged our kids before the game," Pacak said. "Their running back (Anthony Farrar) needed a little over 50 yards to hit a thousand and we didn't want him to get it against us."

Farrar struggled all night and was 10 yards short of the plateau before running for his TD on the final offensive play of the game. He finished with 72 yards on 21 carries.

Monessen jumped out to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter as Cook scored on an 11-yard run to cap an impressive 12-play, 72-yard drive.

After the Greyhounds forced a Carmichaels punt, Nick Bolias returned the kick 54 yards to the Mikes' 2, where ShelDon Miller scored on the next play to make it 14-0.

Monessen went up 20-0 on its next possession, taking

Patch leads Rams to 29-21 upset

Loss does serious damage to West Mifflin's playoff hopes.

By JOSH YOHE
For The Valley Independent

CARROLL TOWNSHIP — Imir Sanders and Ricky Olasz alternated at quarterback for essentially the entire game at Ringgold with West Mifflin's season on the line.

It almost seemed as though Titans' coach Tim Brennan couldn't make up his mind which quarterback was best fit to run his offense.

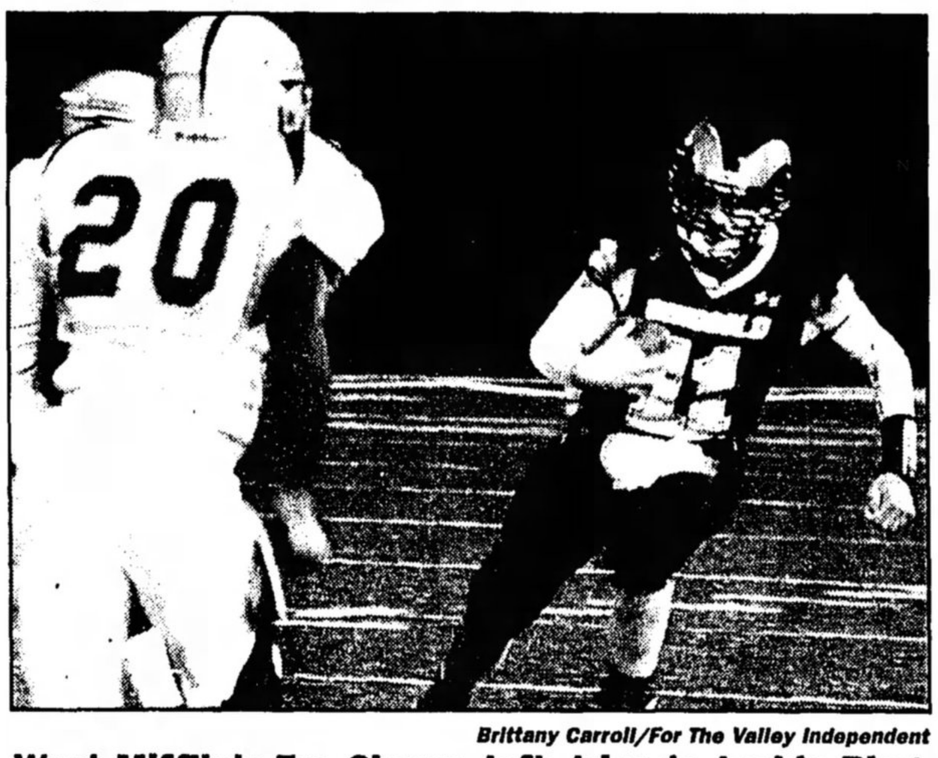
His quarterback position would be considerably more solidified if Dylan Patch were on the Titans' roster.

Patch, the junior Ringgold quarterback, rushed for three touchdowns and threw for another as Ringgold stunned West Mifflin, 29-21.

West Mifflin's playoff hopes are now very much in danger. The Titans can still clinch a playoff spot with a win next week, but with Thomas Jefferson on the Titans' Week 9 schedule, such a scenario doesn't seem likely.

Brennan, however, has not lost faith in his squad.

"That's why they play the games on Friday nights," Brennan said. "If everything the newspapers said was true, nobody would have to show up."



Brittany Carroll/For The Valley Independent

The Titans can also clinch a playoff spot if results play out in a certain manner Friday night.

Of course, they could have claimed a postseason berth by simply taking care of Ringgold, the last place team in the Big 7 Conference. A magnificent performance from Patch, though, was too much for the West Mifflin defense that has faded badly in the past two weeks.

Patch recorded stylish touchdown runs of 44, 45 and 30 yards. He also hooked up with Derek Fiore for a 36-yard strike.

"We knew how good he was and he showed it tonight," Brennan said. "We didn't help it by not being able to tackle very well."

Patch has started all season and has steadily improved. He had his coming out party in Ringgold's final home game, and by doing so, kept the Rams' playoff hopes alive.

"He can do so many things well," Ringgold coach Lloyd Price said. "He keeps plays alive with his feet, and he can run. He did some really impressive things out there. He is coming into his own."

Patch, in fact, rushed for 129 yards and three touchdowns. He also completed 16 of 18 passes for 151 yards and a score.

The Titans managed a huge second half comeback.

Down 21-7 in the third quarter, Brennan decided to go with Sanders at quarterback. Olasz played the entire first half under center and had thrown a 29-yard touchdown pass to Robert Dillard.

"The plan was to use both of them," Brennan said.

The West Mifflin offensive line assumed control of the game in the second half with Sanders at quarterback. Shamar Greene scored from five yards to pull the Titans within a touchdown and, with 4:08 left in regulation, Sanders scored from one yard on a quarterback sneak.

Then the game changed dramatically. Ringgold recaptured the momentum when Bob Bracken caught the ensuing kickoff at his own 25 and returned it to West Mifflin's 42.

"It was supposed to be a hard squib kick," Brennan said.

With terrific field position, Ringgold quickly went to work.

Patch ran for 12 yards on the first play of the drive and then produced the play of the night. The quarterback made three West Mifflin defenders miss on his way to a 30-yard score.

"You can't say enough about the kid," Price said. "He just did it all for us tonight. You can see the kind of talent he has."

West Mifflin still had a chance to even the game.

With three minutes remaining, the Titans drove to Ringgold's 25 while rotating quarterbacks. Sanders was under center when he was stripped by Ringgold's Neal Rands.

In a remarkably bad call, Sanders' fumble was ruled an incomplete pass.

Two plays later, Ringgold put West Mifflin away for good when Bracken sacked Sanders on fourth down.

"You have to understand we only have five seniors on this whole team," Price said. "We're getting better and better. I'm very pleased."

NOTES: Ringgold's Ryan Rosenfeld caught seven passes for 48 yards ... The Rams close at Trinity Friday.

yard kick return by Simeon Bell to give the guests the ball at their own 40.

Charleroi went 60 yards on ten plays and ate up 5:01 off of the clock and tied the score on a one-yard quarterback keeper by Thorpe.

Greg Black's extra point gave the Cougars a one-point lead.

During the drive, Charleroi gave the Little Prexies a steady diet of Briggs as he carried seven times for 47 yards.

On Washington's next drive, the Prexies drove to the Charleroi 33 but on a third-and-eight, Cory Altemara sacked Brown for a nine-yard loss and the hosts had to punt.

It would be the first of two sacks by Altemara.

Charleroi took over at its own 11 and traveled to the Little Prexies' six where Black nailed a 24-yard field goal.

On the first play of the drive, Kyle Shannon raced 18 yards to give the Cougars some breathing room away from their end zone.

After a Washington personal foul on the next play, the Cougars had the ball at their 44 and the guests again rode their workhorse, Briggs, down the field.

He carried the ball five times over Charleroi's next six plays, including a 28-yard scamper, but the Prexies held the Cougars to a Black field goal with 38 seconds left to give the guests a 10-6 lead at intermission.

Briggs finished with 40 carries for 180 yards and he now has 1,154 yards for the season.

Washington took the lead in the third quarter on a four-yard run by Jaylin Kelly to go up 12-10 lead with 5:31 left in the period.

Instead of attempting an extra point to take a three-point lead, the Prexies went for two but Kelly was stopped in the backfield.

The teams exchanged possessions and Charleroi took over with 9:39 left and marched 67 yards on 11 plays as Briggs scored from one yard out as he followed the blocks by Shannon and Altemara into the end zone.

On the drive, Briggs carried ten times for 65 yards.

Washington took over with 4:04 left, but after a first down on its first play of the drive, the Little Prexies turned the ball over on downs.

The Cougars took over with 1:39 left and just when it appeared the Cougars would ice the game, confusion and pandemonium broke loose at the same time.

For the Cougars to make the playoffs, they need Greensburg Central Catholic to lose this afternoon at winless South Allegheny and next week to Jeannette. The Cougars also have to beat Mt. Pleasant Friday.

"It's going to be hard to get the team up after this," Mollis said. "But we are going to try."

NOTES: Charleroi had 146 yards in the first half, all on the ground, compared to 140 yards for the Little Prexies, with 90 coming on the ground ... Briggs had 95 yards in the first half on 18 carries ... Charleroi held Washington to 28 yards rushing in the second half ... The Cougars ran 59 plays to 35 for Washington and outgained them in total yards, 272-194 ... Charleroi had 17 first downs to Washington's 12.

EF lets game slip away

By GREG KRISTEN
For The Valley Independent

The Elizabeth Forward seniors gathered at the 35-yard line following their game against Chartiers Valley to talk about their memories of the past four years.

Corey Sevcik, starting quarterback at the beginning of the year, gave an impassioned speech as tears rolled down his face.

Maybe it was because he realized he and his teammates may have only one game remaining in their high school careers. However, it probably was because the Warriors again let a victory slip through their hands.

EF (4-4, 1-4) has struggled this season to make the big play at the right time, and it showed again in three specific plays Friday night in a 31-17 Big 7 Conference loss to the Colts at Warriors Stadium.

The first one came with 3:05 left in the third quarter and the Warriors trailing 24-17. The Warriors had an opportunity to make the big play that could have turned the game around, but failed. Chartiers Valley running back Dave Adams fumbled the ball at his own 45-yard line, but offensive lineman Mike Scanlon fell on the ball for a 9-yard loss after three EF players missed.

On the next play, Colts running back Beau Carson ran off left tackle and down the sideline for a 64-yard touchdown and a 14-point lead.

Seven plays later, the Warriors comeback crashed to a halt when Sevcik, who took his only snap of the game for starting QB Josh Pomilio, handed the ball off to backup QB Nick DaBaldo. Sevcik then ran down the right sideline and caught a 26-yard pass from DaBaldo, but fumbled the ball at the Chartiers Valley 2-yard line, and watched it roll out of the end zone for a touchback.

"Our kids played so hard. We made some mistakes," Warriors coach Garry Cathell said. "That (fumble) pretty much turned the game. It put the game out of reach."

Senior fullback Greg Sotereanos was almost at a loss for words about the team's fourth conference defeat.

"This is a real tough loss," he said. "That one fumble (by Adams) we could have jumped on, and didn't. We then didn't capitalize. It just kills you to have plays like that. This one was tough."

It looked early on like EF was going to have a good night, scoring just 22 seconds into the game.

Running back Gerald Johnson, who rushed for 94 yards and a TD on eight carries, took a handoff off right tackle, broke a few tackles and ran 73 yards for the opening score.

Chartiers Valley (7-1, 5-1) came right back and cut the Warriors' lead to four with a seven-play, 56-yard drive resulting in a 26-yard Joe Pacella field goal. Carson had the big play of the drive with a 29-yard catch.

Costly loss for Trojans

California suffered a costly loss in its hopes to make the WPIAL Class A playoffs Friday night.

The Trojans (4-4, 3-3) led visiting Jefferson-Morgan, 20-14, after Dylan Hunter ran 34 yards for a touchdown with 4:04 to play in the game.

However, the Rockets drove 50 yards in 8 plays following Hunter's score. And when Ryan Knight scored his third touchdown of the game on a 17-yard run with 1:01 to play, the Rockets dealt the Trojans a 21-20 loss.

Now, the only way California can make the playoffs is with a win at conference champion Monessen Friday night.

J-M (6-2, 4-2) clinched a playoff berth with the win.

The Rockets took a 7-0 lead on Knight's 9-yard run in the second quarter.

However, Cal took a 14-7 lead in the third quarter as Wade Stinnett hauled in a 40-yard scoring pass from D.J. Martinak and then Martinak scored on a 7-yard run.

The Rockets tied the score in the fourth quarter when Knight scored from 2 yards out.

However, Cal went back on top when Hunter, who rushed for 133 yards on 14 carries, scored on his jaunt.

But a botched squib kick following Hunter's TD allowed Jeff-Morgan to start at midfield, setting up the game-winning drive.

Martinak completed 8 of 18 passes for 114 yards. He was intercepted twice.

Knight had 60 yards rushing on 20 carries to go with his three TDs for Jeff-Morgan.

Trinity 41, Yough 21

Andrew Steratore threw two touchdown passes and Mike Preston ran for a pair of scores as the Hillers coasted in the non-conference game after taking a 34-0 halftime lead.

Serra 25, Frazier 0

Rob Heatherington had two touchdowns as the Eagles blanked the Commodores.

C-Houston 21, Bentworth 0

The Bearcats were blanked for the third time.

Crosby lifts Penguins

Two third-period goals and a shootout goal give Pittsburgh 3-2 win.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sidney Crosby found a lot of ways to score in his 300th career NHL regular-season game.

Crosby had a power-play goal and a short-handed score in the third period, and had the only goal in a shootout to help the Pittsburgh Penguins win their seventh straight game, 3-2 over the Florida Panthers on Friday night.

"We struggled in the first half, but we were able to rebound," said Crosby, who has 407 career points. "We stuck with things, and that shows a lot."

After erasing a two-goal deficit in the third period, Crosby beat Tomas Vokoun with a nifty deke in the shootout for the Stanley Cup champion Penguins, an NHL-best 9-1-0.

Steven Reinprecht scored twice in the first period for Florida. The Panthers have lost six of seven to drop to 2-5-1.

"The effort's good, but effort doesn't get you two points," Florida defenseman Keith Ballard said. "We were kind of dumb in the third period. We took too many penalties and stayed in our end the whole time... In the third, they pick it up a little bit and it's almost like we just kind of clammed up just trying to hang."

In the shootout, Crosby moved in slowly on Vokoun and made three moves to his forehand before finally tucking it into the net as Vokoun dove to his left.

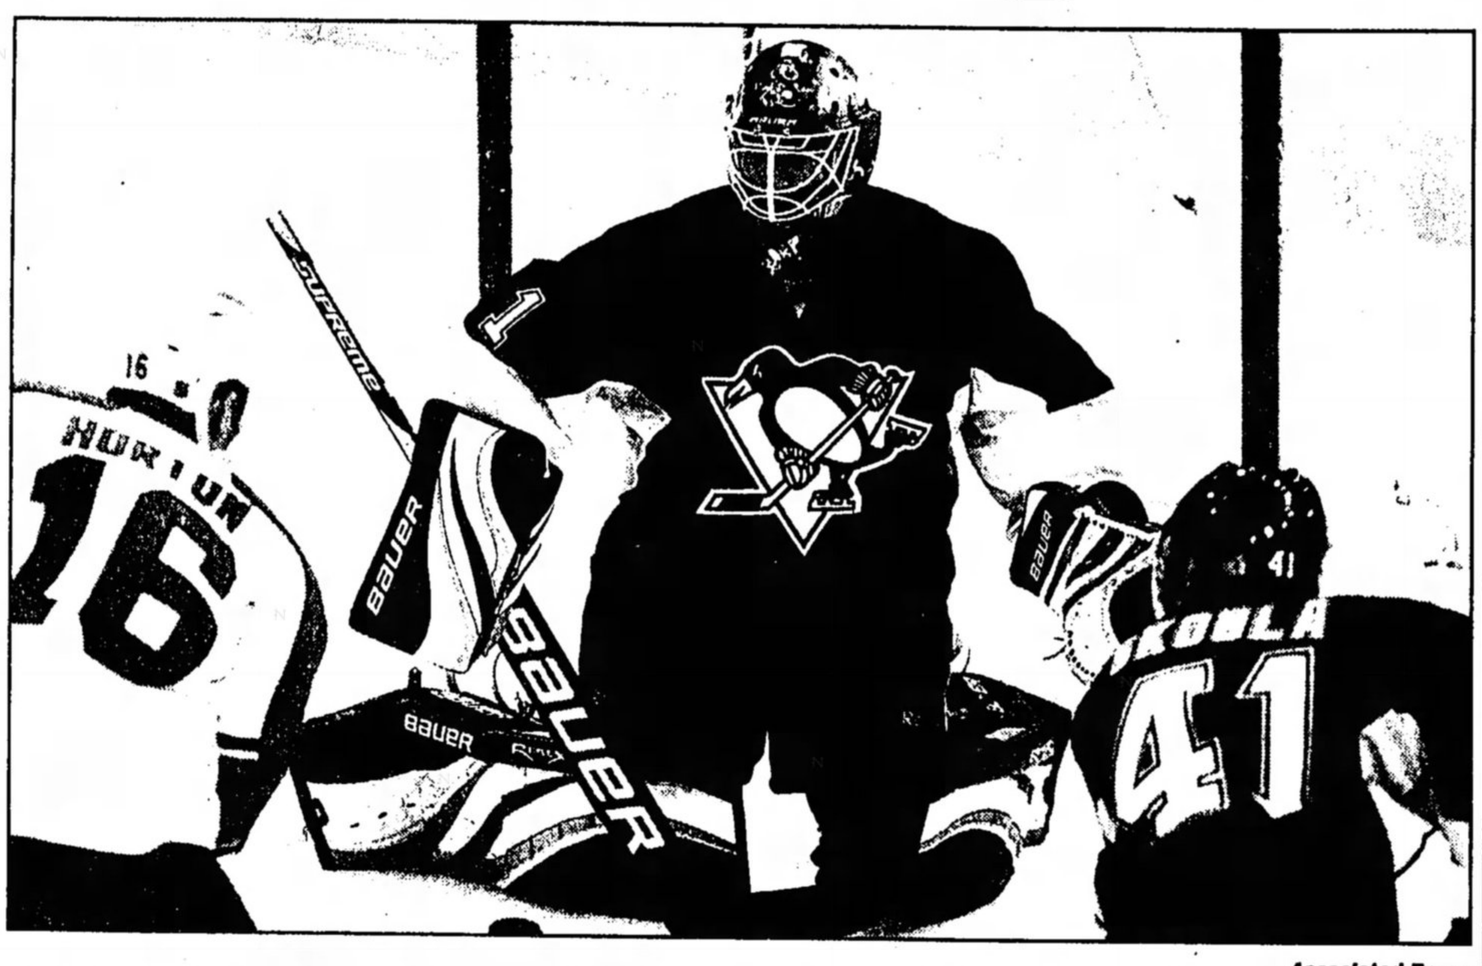
Crosby improved to 3-for-3 in shootouts this season with his 10th career game-deciding shootout goal.

Brent Johnson stopped the Panthers' Reinprecht, Ville Koistinen and Nathan Horton during the shootout and made 27 saves during regulation and overtime in winning for the first time as a Penguin.

Pittsburgh won in the first game since All-Star defenseman Sergei Gonchar was lost for at least four weeks because of a broken bone in his wrist.

"We were still in striking distance (heading into the third)," Crosby said. "We felt like even in the second half of the second period, we created some chances. Even though we were down 2-0 going into the third, we felt like we were pretty close."

Crosby tied it with 3:19 to play with his short-handed goal, one-timing a feed from Evgeni Malkin with a shot that appeared to deflect off a Florida player. The short-handed goal was the first in the NHL for Crosby.



Associated Press

Penguins goalie Brent Johnson (1) makes a save on a shot by Florida's Nathan Horton (16) with Penguins defenseman Martin Skoula (41) following the play in the second period Friday.

Crosby's first goal of the game came a second after a 5-on-3 power play had expired 2:14 into the third after a diving effort to keep in the puck in the zone by Malkin. Malkin swatted the puck to Alex Goligoski, who fed an open Crosby in the right-wing circle.

"We had a bad start, but after that we played better and did a good job in the third period," Malkin said. "(Johnson) played very well."

Reinprecht scored twice in a 2:37 span.

Florida entered the game with only one power-play goal in three road games this season, but scored one on its second opportunity 12:39 into the fist period when Reinprecht flipped a wrist shot past Pittsburgh backup goalie Brent Johnson.

Reinprecht then scored for the fourth time in his past three games by tapping in a loose puck into a wide open net when Johnson couldn't handle a shot from Nathan Horton.

"We couldn't get a third goal," Panthers coach Peter DeBoer said. "We had opportunities, I thought maybe four or five tonight; some 2-on-1s, some chances around the net, but we have to find a way to get more goals."

For a while, it appeared as if Vokoun would make that hold up. He made 41 saves, including stopping Malkin while on a power play 40 seconds into he third period with a glove save but the sequence included Rostislav Olesz's hooking penalty that led to Crosby's power play goal.

Bragging Rights lacks build

The WWE presents Bragging Rights on PPV Sunday from the Mellon Arena in Pittsburgh, but the event lacks punch.

As a new concept this year, the main event will be a tag team match pitting seven Smackdown stars against seven Raw stars.

While the match is different, it resembles the Survivor Series matches with the exception that Sunday's match will only have one fall.

If the WWE really wanted fans to care about Raw and Smackdown taking on each other so that the winning side could have bragging rights, then they should have a complete brand split and not have guys showing up on both shows.

I like the concept of the unified tag team champions, currently Chris Jericho and the Big Show, appearing on both shows, but make the rest of the rosters stay on their respective brand.

Had they used that philosophy the last few months, then people would be behind it more.

Instead, they have used three weeks of TV to build it. Team Raw consists of Shawn Michaels, Triple H, Big Show, Cody Rhodes, Mark Henry, Kofi Kingston and Jack Swagger.

Team Smackdown originally consisted of Jericho, Kane, Cryme Tyme, Drew McIntyre, Dolph Zigler and Eric Escobar.

But last night on Smackdown, Jericho and Kane had the other five face off in a 10-man tag match.

The other five lost so Jericho and Kane replaced them with Matt Hardy, the Hart Dynasty, R-Truth and Finlay.

One fan after reading the Smackdown spoilers online Wednesday asked me why they would change the team so drastically so soon to the show.

Easy logic says that Smackdown will win setting up a return bout in a traditional five on five elimination bout at Survivor Series, but that won't be known until the show takes place.

In heavyweight championship matches, Randy Orton and John Cena will do battle over the WWE title (again) in an Iron Man match and the Undertaker will defend the World title against CM Punk (again), Batista (again) and Rey Mysterio in a Fatal Four-way match.

The match that could steal the show is the match between former tag team champions, John Morrison and the Miz.

Morrison is the Intercontinental champion while the Miz is the U.S. title holder.

For the WWE's sake, they had better hope the Steelers defeat the Minnesota Vikings earlier in the day.

The last time the WWE host a PPV in town was Armageddon in December 2007. Earlier in the day, the Steelers lost at home to Jacksonville.

The crowd was dead silent and it was obviously because the fans were dejected over the Steelers' loss.

If the Steelers win, look for Ben Roethlisberger and some teammates to appear at Bragging Rights.

Tickets remain for the event. Bell time is 8 pm.

Brett, Ben to square off

Steelers' QB reminds many of NFL legend.

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — This is exactly why the Minnesota Vikings spent the summer trying to persuade Brett Favre to end his latest retirement: to run their offense, not be their offense.

To show them how to win big games, especially those in difficult road settings such as Pittsburgh. To complete the passes that must be completed, to win the games that simply can't be lost.

They wanted him to be Ben Roethlisberger.

There are numerous subplots to Sunday's important game between the unbeaten Vikings (6-0) and Steelers (4-2), one that matches a team playing like a champion against one that's proven twice in the last four seasons it is a champion.

Can NFL rushing leader Adrian Peterson, called by Steelers coach Mike Tomlin the best football player in the world, break off runs against one of the best defenses of its era? Can a getting-healthy Troy Polamalu disrupt one of the league's best-balanced offenses? Can the Steelers' improved offensive line handle the Vikings' run-controlling defensive front?

Ultimately, it may come down to what nearly everyone wants to see: Can a still-young quarterback who's already won two Super Bowls prevent an ageless quarterback he admired as a youngster from taking a small but significant step toward winning his second?

Even more intriguing is that while Roethlisberger spent his first five seasons mostly managing the Steelers' offense, he's quickly transforming himself into a modern-day version of Favre.

"They are playing to their quarterback," Vikings coach Brad Childress said. "He's (Roethlisberger) obviously come a long way from making eight throws in a game and handing the ball off. I don't think they are that type of football team. They are not trying to deceive."

Roethlisberger leads the NFL in yards passing, something no Steelers quarterback has done for a full season since the 1970 merger, and has three 300-yard games this season. Hall of Famer Terry Bradshaw had only four during his entire Steelers career.

Asked if the 27-year-old Roethlisberger reminds him of Favre, Childress said, "A young Brett Favre."

"I grew up watching Brett and idolizing him and molding a little bit of my game after him," Roethlisberger said. "It will be fun to play against him for the first time. He's a legend and I'm just trying to get to his level."

Curiously, at the same time, the 40-year-old Favre is becoming more like a younger Roethlisberger, a player whose most impressive statistic is his winning percentage, not his completion percentage.

With Peterson around, Favre doesn't need to chuck the ball carelessly and recklessly — he has 12 touchdown passes, only two interceptions and a 109.5 passer rating, his best such numbers at this stage of a season. He's proving a quarterback doesn't need to lead by arm alone; he's never been 6-0 in his career before, and now he has a chance to be 7-0.

Great ways to reuse milk cartons

Sara NOEL

The first tip reuses milk cartons. I've seen various-sized cartons used for candle or ice molds, building blocks, seed starters, bird feeders, gingerbread houses (graham crackers, frosting and candies) and coin purses (www.cutoutandkeep.net/projects/milk_carton_coin_purse).

But sometimes I forget the simple ways to reuse them. How do you reuse them?

CARTON ORGANIZERS: The common milk carton (half gallon or quart) is a great item to reuse. I have used them for years as holders for small items — nuts, bolts, nails, parts, buttons, etc. They are cheap, last a long time, store well, and work very well.

Simply clean the carton, then, starting at the top edge, cut down on an angle along one side, then cut straight across, back up the other side to the top and finally along the top to the starting point. The angle can be cut anywhere to result in a tall box or short box, depending on the storage need. Remove and discard the top portion.

Once it's open, clean the box again to be sure that no milk remains. Then dry and use. They store on a shelf neatly, can be written on (or paper-clipped with a note) to describe the contents, and when you need an item, you simply tilt over and the items will spread out so you can find the one you need. If the box is too full to sort, you can spread the contents on a table, find your item and simply scoop it all back into the box. Works well and lasts. I've had some in use for more than 40 years. Also, they can be stacked inside one another. — Tom O., Pennsylvania

CARE PACKAGE: I read your response to Margaret in New England about sending nonperishable food that goes with ramen noodles to a soldier. I know of a great thing to put in noodles, and we kept it in our foot lockers: summer sausages. If you get the small ones, you can use them before they go bad. As long as they are still sealed, they will last forever and are so tasty. — Heather C., e-mail

GLASS-JAR USE: I keep a glass jar in the freezer and dump cooking grease and hamburger grease in it. When it's full, I put it out for the trash guys. I also keep my packets of Sweet'n Low and Splenda in them in the pantry. That way, you can see how much you have left and never have to drink your magical zombie elixir of life without Splenda. — Mary C., Indiana

FRIDGE/FREEZER ORGANIZATION: I recently bought plastic dish tubs for my freezer. I was always losing items to freezer burn because they were always hidden behind and under all the stuff. I pulled everything out and cleaned. Then I put like items in the tubs (meat in red ones and veggies in white ones) and put them back on the shelves.

They fit perfectly. It has also helped me when I've finished meal planning. With all the meat in one area, I now know just what I have and what I need to get.

And it saves me from buying an item I already had but just couldn't see. It might work if you found some containers shallow enough to fit the refrigerator shelves. You could put all dairy together, deli stuff, fruit, etc. — Tami, Texas

VALLEY CLUB NOTES

Court Charleroi 669, CD of A

Court Charleroi 669 Catholic Daughters of America met Oct. 14 in Marian Hall of Mary, Mother of the Church. The Rosary was recited at 7 p.m. led by Mary Elizabeth Fisher and assisted by Mary Rosick, Kathy Driesen, Jean Galloni, Patty Lehr and Dorothy Paterline. Regent Dottie Taylor opened the meeting with prayer and the flag salute. Recording Secretary Paterline read the minutes of the previous meeting, correspondence and the sunshine report. Lehr, acting treasurer, read the report and the bills. Taylor installed two new members: Esther McManus and Theresa Altemare.

The Christmas party report was given by Galloni. She asked the members to give their dinner selection and payment at the November meeting. For information, call your committee chairman.

Birthdays were celebrated by Cleste Corona, Lehr, Dottie Stillitano and Mary Elizabeth Fisher. Each was given a small gift.

Taylor thanked those who helped make the recent fashions show-luncheon a success. World-wide rosary for the Unborn Babies will be held Oct. 16-18. Members are asked to wear white ribbons and to pray the Rosary those days.

Share the wealth was won by Kay Briggs, Freda Romonosky and Janet Kandrick. Special prize was won by Taylor.

Thank you was extended to Joanne Mocilan and Mary Rosick for the lunch.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 11.

TIME OF RECEIPT: 1:30 p.m., Prevailing Time
PLACE OF RECEIPT: Superintendent's Office at the High School, 11 Trojan Way, Suite 100, Coal Center, PA 15423

CONTRACT: No. CAL-08-001FH - Field House and Parking with Alternates; CD DISK DEPOSIT: $50.00 (non-refundable) Payable to K2 Engineering, Inc.; BID SECURITY: 10% of the Base Bid Payable to the Owner. If contractor does not have the ability to print out 24"x 36" drawings from the disk they can be provided by K2 at $3.00 per sheet upon request, sheets will only be produced in full sets. This charge will be in addition to the disk cost of $50.00. The disk will still be required for the Project Manual. It is the responsibility of the contractor to print the Project Manual. All costs are non-refundable.

CONTRACT: No. CAL-08-001ME - Main Entrance and Paving with Alternates; CD DISK DEPOSIT: $50.00 (non-refundable) Payable to K2 Engineering, Inc., BID SECURITY: 10% of Base Bid Payable to the Owner. If contractor does not have the ability to print out 24"x 36" drawings from the disk they can be provided by K2 at $3.00 per sheet upon request, sheets will only be produced in full sets. This charge will be in addition to the disk cost of $50.00. The disk will still be required for the Project Manual. It is the responsibility of the contractor to print the Project Manual. All costs are non-refundable.

Bidders MUST be registered with the Project Engineer in order to receive any Addenda. Bidders (not sub-bidders or suppliers) may obtain 1 complete set of the Bidding Documents by applying to the Project Engineer and depositing the amount stated above. The Bidding Documents will not be accepted for return at the receipt of the Bids. A separate check in the amount of $10.00, made payable to K2 Engineering, Inc., shall be provided by those requesting the CD DISK by mail.
Each Disk will consist of the following:
- The Project Manual
- The Contract Drawings for the Work of the Contract which is being bid by the Bidder
- The Bid Form for the Contract which is being bid by the Bidder
- 1 copy of all Addenda issued via email during the bidding period

Sub-bidders and suppliers may also purchase copies of the Contract Documents by contacting K2 Engineering, Inc. All payments for copies obtained shall be paid directly to K2 Engineering, Inc., and are nonrefundable. The purchaser is solely responsible for determining the drawings and Project Manual pages of which are required to prepare a suitable sub-bid. The Bidding Documents may be viewed free of charge at the Engineer's office and at the Owner's office.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a Bid security made payable to the Owner in the amount stated above. The Bid security shall be in the form of a certified check or a Bid Bond with a surety company satisfactory to the Owner. The Bid security pledges that the Bidder will not withdraw his Bid for the time period designated on the Bid Form; and that if it's Bid is accepted, it will enter into a Contract with the Owner on the terms stated in its Bid; and that it will furnish the required bonds and insurance coverage; and that should the bidder fail to enter into such Contract or fail to furnish the required bonds and insurance coverage within the time period designated in the Bid Form, the Bid security shall be forfeited to the Owner as liquidated damages and not as a penalty.
Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities or irregularities in any bid received.

A pre-bid conference will be held on the date and time listed above in this Advertisement. Bidders will meet at the office of the California Area High School. After the pre-bid conference, the Bidders will be permitted to inspect the area of the work. This will be the only opportunity to inspect the area of the work. This contract shall be subject to the Pennsylvania Prevailing Wage Act of August 15, 1961, P.L. 987, as amended 43 P.S. section 165 et. seq. Workers shall not be paid less than the prevailing minimum wages as set forth in applicable schedule.

No bid may be withdrawn for a period of sixty (60) days once filed with the California Area School District. The California Area School District reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informality in the bids received.
The California Area School District is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

SCORPIO
October 24 through November 21

In the year ahead, there are strong indications that you will have a change of outlook concerning your philosophical point of view on many facets of life. These alterations will make you a stronger person in many ways.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Someone who may be a bit jealous might try to put obstacles in your path. However, another with more authority will have them removed again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Be objective when evaluating the thinking of your associates and, when one has a superior idea, back him or her all the way. Squash any thoughts of rejecting this person out of pride.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- You're likely to be rewarded with a heftier paycheck for a job well done, but that doesn't mean this will hold true for everything you do. Take your good luck where you find it, and expect no more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Your wonderful give-and-take attitude will serve you well, as long as it is working. However, once you start to think you've given enough, you might begin to argue rather than compromise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- It may not be possible to accomplish all that you had planned, so be happy with what you get done. If you expect more of yourself than is feasible, you'll unnecessarily end up feeling miserable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- It's generally a good day for you and things should go well, but there is a possibility that you could explode over something that shouldn't matter. Take time to think instead of simply reacting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Those strong tactics that you used successfully at work need to be toned down when at home. Be discerning about when and on whom you use force.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Generally, you're good at accepting the ideas and opinions of others without argument. However, if there is someone who rubs you the wrong way, you won't hold your tongue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- A joint effort should work out for you, provided it isn't a one-sided situation. While each is pulling his or her weight, all will go well; but should one tire and want to quit, sparks could fly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- That pleasant disposition of yours will be in good working order when involved in a collective endeavor. A one-on-one situation, however, is likely to yield a different story.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You're likely to perform quite well, even when challenged or pressured, until you tire. Once that takes place, you won't retain your usual pleasant mood.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Instead of dealing on the same plane as moody or temperamental types, you'll know how to bring them up to your level; yet this will have its limitations. When you can't take anymore, walk away.

Crumb zaps the Book of Genesis

In his latest book, the reclusive artist re-imagines the Creation story.

By JOHN ROGERS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — His religious upbringing might well be as unorthodox as the psychedelic-inspired comic-strip characters that have made R. Crumb the most famous underground artist of his time.

Which, come to think of it, may have made Crumb the perfect artist for his latest project, an illustrated, comic-book version of "The Book of Genesis," the work that comprises the first 50 chapters of the Bible.

Raised in a secular household that was headed by a rigidly strict, ex-Marine father who was actually a closeted atheist, Crumb was sent off to Catholic school at age 6 because his father had always admired the discipline Catholic nuns were famous for instilling in their students.

"We never got a lot of religion at home," Crumb says of himself and his siblings. "But we certainly got the whole indoctrination and brainwashing in school."

Sixty years later, the creator of comic book characters like the R-rated Fritz the Cat and the bizarre Mr. Natural has finally put that religious training to good use.

"The Book of Genesis Illustrated by R. Crumb" was published last month, and on Oct. 24 the stunningly detailed, beautifully crafted black-and-white drawings that comprise its 201 pages will go on display at Los Angeles' Hammer Museum. After the exhibition closes in February it will move on to other cities, including New York and Portland, Ore., a circumstance that has the normally circumspect Crumb shaking his head in disbelief.

Associated Press

This undated image provided by the Hammer Museum shows a detail from R. Crumb's illustrated Book of Genesis.

"The Bible! Jesus! Incredible," Crumb says in a voice filled with awe as he reflects on the project that has consumed the last five years of his life.

Indeed, the project does raise an obvious question: Why would the guy famous for drawing voluptuous women and nerdy looking, well-endowed men, who put the phrase "Keep on Truckin'" into the national vocabulary with his posters of a big-footed oddball out for a walk, and who by his own admission owes much of his artistic inspiration to his extensive use of LSD in the 1960s, take on the Bible?

"It's kind of complicated," Crumb guffaws during a phone interview from his home in the south of France.

"I don't think 'Genesis' is a good place to look for spiritual guidance or moral guidance," he continues. "I don't believe it's the word of God.

"At the same time," he continues, "I think the stories are very powerful. I'm not out to ridicule them or belittle them."

Although done in the same, unmistakable style that Crumb has brought to such comic books as Zap, Weirdo and Dirty Laundry, "Genesis" is also surprisingly respectful, as well as faithfully loyal to the Bible's original text.

"He could have done something really satiric but he didn't," says Ali Subotnick, who is curating the exhibit. "He's not bastardizing the stories at all."

Which is not to say Crumb hasn't added his own unique touch here and there.

While historical characters like Noah and the Pharaoh don't look that much different from how they have been portrayed by other artists, God and the serpent are another story.

Crumb's Creator is one mean-looking old dude, an angry, finger-pointing father figure with a flowing white beard and no sense of humor. The serpent, meanwhile, looks as much like a snake-oil salesman as a snake.

"He's a con man," Crumb says of the reptile that got Adam and Eve booted from the Garden of Eden. "The serpent represents that part of cleverness and persuasion and deception and flattery, all those qualities which humans are so good at but that we don't consider our finest virtues."

It was teachings like those that fascinated him and drew him to the project, Crumb says. He spent a couple of years doing the research before setting to work, secluding himself in a cabin in the mountains for weeks at a time so he could draw uninterrupted.

Not an atheist like his father, Crumb describes himself as a Gnostic, a member of that ancient movement searching for spiritual enlightenment.

"I've spent a lot of time studying different religious traditions and I meditate," he says. "I think that all humans have that need for some spiritual meaning.

"But," he adds with a hearty laugh, "I don't think you're going to find it in 'Genesis.'"

Often described as reclusive, and by his own admission very shy, Crumb is actually an engaging conversationalist when he will sit down to talk. He's at turns witty, unpretentious and unfailingly friendly.

"Hi, I was just doing the dishes," he says upon picking up the phone. Minutes later, he lets out a loud, unembarrassed after-dinner belch.

The Philadelphia native has reluctantly agreed to come to the United States to promote the book and exhibition with a lecture at UCLA on Oct. 29 and a handful of other appearances. He says he's dreading all of them.

Kara to speak at Roscoe church

The Roscoe Presbyterian Church will welcome back Richard Kara to preach and lead the 11 a.m. Sunday worship service.

Kara is a retired Pennsylvania state trooper, Presbyterian Elder and "Poster Boy," pancreatic cancer survivor, as described by Pittsburgh's Hillman Cancer Center team that is monitoring his progress against the disease.

Collection set at Grace U.M.

Grace United Methodist Church, Coal Center, will again be collecting gift-filled shoeboxes in support of the Samaritan's Purse Operation Christmas Child program. OCC, Operation Christmas Child, brings joy and hope to children in desperate situations worldwide through simple, gift-filled shoe boxes and the good news of God's love. More information about the ministry can be found at www.samaritanspurse.org.

Grace United Methodist Church is located at 420 California Drive, Coal Center. For driving directions, see the Web site at www.come-to-grace.org or call (724) 483-4448.

Choirs to sing in Belle Vernon

The chancel choirs from Saint Sebastian Catholic Church, North Belle Vernon, and the First Presbyterian Church of Belle Vernon will combine their talents to enhance the worship service at both churches tomorrow morning. The choirs will sing at the 9 a.m. Mass at St. Sebastian and at the 10:45 a.m. service at First Presbyterian. Friends are invited to both services.

Catalano to speak at St. Paul Baptist

St. Paul Baptist Church, 49 South McKean Ave., Donora, will welcome the Rev. Fred Catalano as its guest preacher at the 11 a.m. Sunday worship service.

Catalano is an associate minister under senior pastor Craig Giles at the Triumph Baptist Church, Sewickley. Catalano has been in the ministry since 1985. He is a graduate of Liberty University and the International Bible Seminary. Prior to relocating to Pennsylvania, Catalano founded and pastored at churches in Rhode Island and Florida as well as Belle Vue. He is currently in prison ministry and the Acts 29 Ministry, which aids in the placement of adoption of children.

Men, Women's Day set in Monessen

Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, 230 Reed Ave., Monessen, will hold a Men and Women's Day service 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Speaker will be the Rev. Diane Hopson, of Mt. Sinai Baptist Church.

A meal will be served following the 11 a.m. service.

AROUND THE WORLD

Polygamous sect challenges seizure

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A polygamous sect is asking the Utah Supreme Court to overturn a state court decision that stripped the religious purposes from its communal land trust.

In a court filing, attorneys for the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints argue that making the United Effort Plan Trust secular was a violation of the faith's constitutionally protected religious rights.

Valued at more than $110 million, the trust holds most of the property in Hildale, Utah; Colorado City, Ariz.; and Bountiful, British Columbia — communities that are homes to FLDS members.

The UEP was formed in 1942 on a religious principle known as the Holy United Order, which calls for the sharing of assets for the benefit of all who follow the tenets of the faith.

Jenkins remains in ND board post

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The Rev. John I. Jenkins, who came under fire for inviting President Barack Obama to the University of Notre Dame campus, has been re-elected to a second five-year term as president of the school.

The trustees also approved a resolution expressing their "respect and full confidence" in Jenkins, saying he has nurtured an environment where "the Catholic faith and intellectual tradition are celebrated and lived."

Jenkins faced widespread criticism last spring from Catholic bishops and anti-abortion activists after inviting Obama to deliver Notre Dame's commencement address and receive an honorary degree.

Opponents objected to Obama's support for abortion rights and embryonic stem-cell research, positions that contradict church teachings.

Jenkins said last month that he planned to travel to Washington in January to take part in an annual anti-abortion march.

Attorney says displays are legal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attorneys for two southern Kentucky counties contend that their planned courthouse display of the Ten Commandments is for educational and historical purposes.

Their new argument in the 10-year dispute follows a 2005 U.S. Supreme Court decision that McCreary and Pulaski counties had a predominantly religious purpose for the display. However, the court has also ruled that religious materials could be allowed as part of an educational or historical display.

The counties' lawyer told a three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in conference call arguments that the revised display the counties want to use satisfies the high court's requirement.

Joy

Joy is the second grace mentioned by St. Paul as a fruit of the Spirit. Joy is a translation of the Greek word "chara," which can be rendered as joy, gladness, or delight. The Greek verb "charein" means "to rejoice." Throughout the Bible, there are many and varied occurrences of joy and rejoicing. For instance, we are told repeatedly in the Psalms to "Rejoice in the Lord." (Cf. Psalms 33, 35, and 97) And Jesus tells us that He has come to bring joy: "These things I have spoken to you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full." (John 15:11) We are repeatedly told that following God's commandments and having faith that God will save us, brings joy. Indeed, it is joyful to know that we are doing God's will, that our sins are truly forgiven, and that salvation awaits us. This is the real joy which abides in us despite the ups and downs of our external circumstances or even our momentary mood swings. And although we may not always feel the elation of being on top of the mountain, if we keep our faith and trust in the Lord, we will always have the bedrock of joy to sustain us.

JOY JOY JOY JOY

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Parents harm their kids when they let them cheat

Dear ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I was raised from an early age that if you play a game, you have to play fair and obey the rules. Those rules were never bent regardless of what the game was or who we played with.

Over the years I have played games with many people, and while I realize it's possible for people to play the same game slightly differently, the rules still applied. What I don't understand is cheating.

A couple I know allow their children to play games with adults and let them cheat. What they're doing is obvious, and their parents even joke about it. I no longer enjoy playing with this family, but I don't know what to do or say. I have tried to subtly discourage and stop the deceptions, but I don't want to seem like a sore loser. Any suggestions? — PLAYS BY THE RULES, URBANA, OHIO

DEAR PLAYS BY THE RULES: Yes. Do not play games with the family if the children are involved. It's not about being a sore loser; it's about not being a chump. By allowing their children to ignore the "rules," these parents are sending the message that rules don't apply to them. Because the children cheat when they play with you, it's safe to assume that they think it's acceptable to do it with other kids. And when their contemporaries realize what's going on, who do you think won't be allowed to join their games — or anything else? Look at it this way: From little cheaters, big cheaters grow.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law has just informed me that she doesn't think it is as important for her daughters to attend college as it is her sons.

My mother-in-law recently made a crack about my finances because she knows I'm paying off my student loans for two degrees.

My father-in-law can't understand what "all the fuss is about" now that my oldest daughter is preparing for college.

Abby, I have friends in their 30s and 40s who, for one reason or another, are single women supporting themselves. Even some who have degrees are struggling, but they are able to own their own homes because they are able to earn decent salaries.

What should I say when my mother-in-law and sister-in-law put me down for higher learning? Neither of them went to college or has ever worked. They would be on welfare if they didn't have their husbands' income. By the way, I'm not having any problem paying back my student loans, and my husband is proud of my accomplishments. — EDUCATED IN TENNESSEE

DEAR EDUCATED: Your mother-in-law and sister-in-law are misguided. They do not understand the financial realities that exist for women today because they have never been exposed to them. Nothing that you can say to them will change their mind-set.

So rather than respond to their naive comments, take every opportunity to encourage your nieces to pursue their educations so they can live independent lives. And pray that your father-in-law and brother-in-law leave their wives well-provided-for should tragedy strike, because otherwise they could wind up on your doorstep.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

BLAINE TOWNSHIP REFERENDUM

Notice to all Blaine Township registered electors, the following ballot question will appear on the Municipal General Election Ballot to be conducted on Tuesday, November 3, 2009.

"Shall the Home Rule Charter Contained in the report dated August 28, 2009, of the Blaine Township Government Study Commission, prepared in accordance with the Home Rule Charter and Optional Plans Law, be adopted by Blaine Township?"

PLAIN ENGLISH EXPLANATION FOR BLAINE TOWNSHIP REFERENDUM

A "Yes" vote will mean the adoption of the proposed Blaine Township Home Rule Charter in its entirety. If approved, the Charter will take effect immediately upon approval by the electors of the Township. A "No" vote will reject the Charter in its entirety, and the Township will continue to be governed by the Pennsylvania Second Class Township Code.

ATTENTION: HANDICAPPED AND ELDERLY ELECTORS

Pursuant to the Voting Accessibility for the Elderly and Handicapped Act (P.L. 98-435), the Washington County Board of Elections is announcing those precincts which have polling places that have been found to be inaccessible (For voting purposes only) to the handicapped (temporary or permanent physical disability) or elderly (65 years of age or older) for the November 3, 2009 Municipal General Election.

Any registered handicapped or elderly elector residing in any of the listed precincts, may apply by mail or phone to the County Board of Elections for an application to receive an "Alternate Ballot", which is similar to an Absentee Ballot.

VALLEY CLUB NOTES

New Eagle AARP

New Eagle AARP met Oct. 13 at the VFW social hall.

Opening exercises were conducted by President Pat Petrosky.

The meeting was turned over to Jim Caserta, program chairman, who introduced ten members of the Mid-Mon Valley Shipmates. A history of the U.S. flag, beginning with the 13 colonies up to present day, was given and a flag folding demonstration was held.

An array of desserts was served after the presentation. Bonnie Appolonia and Carmella Tosi were in charge of the dessert table.

The regular meeting followed with routine reports from Zara Pesognelli, Lorraine Pascarella, Ida Mancinelli and Loretta Ruse.

October birthdays included Larry Anselmino, Anna Gaggini, Sharon Coleman and Petrosky.

Wedding anniversaries for Cliff and Connie Wester, 61 years, and Mike and Pat Petrosky, 21 years, were observed.

Members are asked to donate non-perishable food items for the local food bank at the November meeting. Also, Veterans Day will be celebrated.

Members are requested to wear red, white and blue, if possible. A movie "A Tribute to Veterans" will be shown. Veterans are asked to wear their uniforms, hats, medals or other military apparel. Members are also requested to bring their baby or childhood photos to the meeting. Tickets for the Dec. 5 Christmas party will be sold.

Monessen High School Class of 1957

The 70th birthday celebration of the Monessen High School Class of 1957 was held Aug. 28 at Monessen City Park.

The 72 classmates and 43 guests came from California, Florida, New York, Michigan, Colorado, Ohio, Kentucky, Arizona, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Jim Sepesky gave the invocation before the catered barbecue. Individual birthday cakes were given to each classmate, after which birthday greetings were sung. After the birthday photo was taken, toastmaster Jack Bergstein presented awards to the following classmates:

First reservation, Frank Rizzuto; youngest classmate, Pauline Swade Zilka; oldest classmate, Maurice Mathews; last reservation, Larry Mastracci; special 1939 gift basket, Mary Katsuleris.

A tribute to departed classmates was presented with a photo of each classmate. Names were read by Donna Bost Maxwell along with Jane Williams Zimmerman and Alice Travis Planey.

The committee consisted of: Emilene Bellone Martinak, Jack Bergstein, Keith Bradley, Al Gaudio, Gloria Safo Hayes, Don Madzy, Gerry Diamante, Minniti, Dolores Povich Ostetrico, Ted Pettko, Shirley Sacharov Reno, Bea Tobacco Sarra, Jim Sepesky, Anthony Trozzo and Tom Weible.

The party concluded at the home of classmate Jack Bergstein.

Music was provided throughout the afternoon by deejay LeRoy Bright.

VALLEY CLUB NOTES

Italian American Heritage Society

One hundred twenty members gathered to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the Italian American Heritage Society of Monessen. President Fred Fundy recalled the history altering voyage of Christopher Columbus and followed with flag pledge.

Secretary-Treasurer Angela Caporossi read the minutes of the last meeting and gave the financial report.

Member Rene Moncini gave a brief history of the group, which began as a result of a verbal history project conducted in October and November in 1994 by Terry Necciai and Marilyn Crouch with a grant from the American Industrial Heritage Project.

Eight women answered the call to discuss the formation of a group. They, along with Cassandra Vivian as leader, were Mary Moncini, Rene Moncini, Ann Morich, Valia Ray and Mary Tokach, who are still active members. By the end of the sixth week of meetings, the membership had grown to 40.

Helen Murin was selected to conduct the meetings and Angela Caporossi, secretary-treasuruer. Several events, which have become annual events, are the St. Joseph Festa, Porchetta, annual concert by the Pittsburgh Symphonic Band and presentation of scholarships.

Several bus trips to tour Pittsburgh, New York, Canton, Ohio, and Rhode Island were enjoyed by members.

In October 2004 members celebrated the 10th anniversary with Rosalyn Moncini Munsch as toastmistress. Featured speaker was Terry Necciai, architectural historian, of Philadelphia. Helen Murin was also honored for her years of leadership.

The society currently has a membership of 230, constantly changing due to people moving away, illness, death, etc. It is the hope of Fundy and Vice President Jack Cattaneo that the group will continue to grow and have others join in years to come.

Chairperson Gilda Sparacino and her committee used a red, white and green color scheme in vases of flowers on the tables, napkins, napkins, runners on the tables, etc. The front table had replicas of Columbus ships. A large bulletin board with the story of the voyage and pictures were on display.

Luncheon was served.

Anniversary cakes donated by Mary and Rene Moncini were also served.

The monthly monetary award was won by Nello Tineri.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 19 at Epiphany Chapel Hall.

ENGAGEMENTS

Widing-Forsyth

Sarah Widing & Jake Forsyth

The engagement of Sarah Widing, of Monessen, and Jake Forsyth, of Bentleyville, is being announced.

Widing, the daughter of Paulette and Dave Widing, of Monessen, graduated from Geibel Catholic High School, Connellsville, and Western School of Health and Business, Pittsburgh. She is employed with Med Health Services, Monroeville, as an ultrasound technician.

Forsyth is the son of Mary and Brett Forsyth, of Benleyville, and the grandson of Bill and Jackie Forsyth, of Pittsburgh. He graduated from Bentworth High School and Robert Morris University, Pittsburgh, and is a media artist.

The couple is planning a Nov. 14 wedding, with the reception to be held at the St. Spyridon Hellenic Center, Monessen.

19-year-old Norwegian takes Monopoly title

Bjorn Halvard won $20,580 in real money for the title.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A lucky swap and some eager building propelled a 19-year-old Norwegian student to the top of board game fame and sent three would-be tycoons to the poor house at the Monopoly World Championship in Las Vegas.

Bjorn Halvard, who graduated this year from the Oslo Private Gymnasium school, captured the title on Thursday when the battleship token of 25-year-old Geoff Christopher of New Zealand landed consecutively on Pacific Avenue and North Carolina Avenue, and he couldn't afford the combined $1,600 rent.

"(I'm) the most surprised you could ever be," Halvard told The Associated Press. "I think this was a really good final. It was the best game I played in the whole tournament."

Halvard won $20,580 in real money for the title — the total amount in the bank of a standard Monopoly game. The other finalists won nothing beyond the trip that brought each of the 41 competitors to the Caesars Palace hotel-casino on the Las Vegas Strip to represent their home countries as national champions.

After taking out 24-year-old Russian Oleg Korostelev, Halvard bankrupted American champion Rick Marinaccio, a 26-year-old corporate lawyer from Buffalo, N.Y., who was trying to become the first U.S. player to win the board game championship since 1974.

Halvard was the only player without a monopoly after trades gave Marinaccio the magenta property group, Christopher the oranges and Korostelev the more expensive greens.

But the game turned when Korostelev swapped Halvard a cheaper light blue property to gain the red property group, giving Halvard an inexpensive monopoly with cash to develop.
